Proposed gas station conflicts with neighborhood's image

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

The first mistake was made when all the trees were cut down on the lot before the would-be gas station-with-convenience-store operator got his use permit. That was a "unique way of preparing for an appearance before the Planning Commission," Vice Mayor Reba McClanan said. "I don't appreciate the way the lot was cleared before it came to Planning Commission," McClanan said Monday afternoon. Glenn Croshaw, attorney, represented the applicants, James L. Harrell and Associates who were applying for a use permit for the gas station with a convenience store on a 40,075 square-foot parcel on the north side of Sandbridge Road, east of Entrada Drive in the Princess Anne Borough. She added that she did not think that a gas station was appropriate at the entrance to Lago Mar, one of the nicest residential areas in the city. The Planning Commission had recommended approval with the construction of an eight-foot privacy fence with landscaping along the western property line where it adjoins the residences. Although Croshaw said the operation would be open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., McClanan said that "most of them are open all the time." Croshaw, who had expected concurrence with the Planning Commission recommendation, remarked, "I got shot down See GAS STATION, page 4

Two developments challenge green line zoning

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach's green line may turn out to be as fragile as the paper it's drawn upon, unless the city attorney's office comes up with some precedent which will permit the city to prevent the development of two new subdivisions. The two developments are Foxfire and Courthouse Estates. Planning Director Robert Scott Monday afternoon at a work session preceding the regular council meeting briefed Council on the status of the subdivisions. Council discussed the subdivisions and their possible effect on the city's land use plans at an executive session right afterward and at another executive session from 5:20 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

following the regular Council meeting. Mayor Harold Heischob reported afterward that no moratorium on development south of the green line, proposed by the Planning Commission, would be declared. He also said that any delay on the Foxfire development "is moot" because "the applicant will go across the street and the judge will issue a permit." Council turned over the whole matter to Bimson for further study. Heischob said that he would like to have the report in time for the next meeting, Nov. 19, but that the attorney's office may be studying as many as 150 cases.

"We are not giving up on anything," he said, but the legal opinion is that "we can't do anything with Foxfire." Scott had told Council that approval of the Foxfire subdivision plan is imminent, but that in the case of Courthouse Estates, the situation is not as clear-cut.

Heischob conceded that whatever is done with the two subdivisions will possibly have an effect on future downzoning which has been suggested for areas south of the green line. He said he had expected to get more help from the Planning Commission.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. also said the Council has had very little help in developing a plan of action. He said that the city should have received some advice from the attorney's office after the last 60-day moratorium imposed in April. "Council as a whole," he said, "is concerned about (maintaining) the present green line until we can catch up with services."

If these subdivisions are permitted, asked Councilwoman Barbara Henley later, how can Council deny owners of other parcels which are already zoned residential? If the homes are placed there, she continued, how can the city deny these families city services such as schools and roads?

Approximately 4,000 acres of land are zoned for residential development south of the green line. What makes these two parcels different is that site plans have been submitted for review. In any event, plopping two subdivisions in the middle of the agricultural area can put a damper on the city's plans and smother the Comprehensive plan before it breathes its first breath.

Virginia Baptists visit the Beach

RICHMOND - The one hundred sixty-first annual meeting of the Baptist General Association of Virginia will be held at the Pavilion Convention Center in Virginia Beach, November 13-14. Each morning and afternoon session of the two-day meeting will begin with a thematic address by Dr. C.C. Goen, professor of Church History, Wesley Theological Seminary, Washington, D.C. The theme of this meeting is "Our Heritage...Our Hope." Dr. Cecil A. Ray, national director of Planned Growth in Giving for the Southern Baptist Convention, will be featured on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Ray will highlight the Planned Growth in Giving emphasis, a fifteen-year program designed to encourage commitment to make a plan to grow in giving, both individually and as a corporate body - the church. The meeting will close Wednesday evening with an address by Dr. J.W. MacGorman, professor of New Testament, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas. Dr. MacGorman will be speaking on "God's Master Plan." It is anticipated that there will be vigorous discussion regarding some of the resolutions passed by the Southern Baptist Convention at its annual meeting in June, particularly the resolution regarding the ordaining of women. Even though resolutions passed by the Southern Baptist Convention and/or the state conventions are not binding on the local churches, it is informative for the general public to be aware of the concerns of churches on outstanding issues. Since Southern Baptists make up 10 percent of the population of Virginia, actions taken at the annual meeting should be of interest to all Virginians. The morning and afternoon business sessions will include reports from standing and special committees, recommendations from the General Board, action on the proposed 1985 Virginia Cooperative Program budget, and election of officers. Dr. William L. Lumpkin, pastor of Freemason Street Baptist Church in Norfolk, and outgoing president of the Baptist General Association of Virginia, will give the president's address on Tuesday evening. Dr. James E.

Baum, pastor of First Baptist Church, Martinsville, will bring the annual sermon on Tuesday morning. Special music will include the Virginia Baptist Male Chorus, the Virginia Baptist Women's Chorus, the Adult Choir, Thalia Lynn Baptist Church of Virginia Beach, "His Song," the Vocal Ensemble of Westover Hill Baptist Church, Virginia Beach, "One Voice," Vocal Ensemble of First Baptist Church, Norfolk, Norfolk Baptist Association See BAPTISTS, page 8

Museum reveals Beach Finds program

By Julie Lawrence

VIRGINIA BEACH - The Virginia Museum of Marine Sciences recently revealed a new statewide program to the City Council of Virginia Beach. The program is Beach Finds, and it is a volunteer program organized by C-COMMS, Council of Citizens and Organizations for the Museum of Marine Sciences, a group which has been active in the establishment of the Museum. The purpose of Beach Finds is to offer a service whereby people who find fossils, artifacts and other items of interest along Virginia beaches and shorelines can receive information about their finds, and also to establish a public record of such finds which are scientifically significant. The program will be operated primarily by museum volunteers who will respond to the many calls received at the Museum Planning Office. Volunteers will pick up beach finds items and bring them to the museum for identification by museum staff and other experts as needed. The item will then be returned to the finder along with identification and background information, and in some cases may be used in museum exhibits. The program will eventually cover the entire state of Virginia and will result in the general public becoming more aware and informed of interesting marine finds and sightings which frequently occur in our state. Beach Finds is co-chaired by volunteers Sam Myers and Paul Anninos, both residents of Virginia Beach. Edward Snyder, president of Checkered Flag in Virginia Beach has donated the use of an Isuzu Trooper II for the program. C. Mac Rawls, director of the Virginia Museum of Marine Sciences revealed the first two items to be donated to the Beach Finds program, a walrus skull and a mastodon tusk, both believed to be older than 15,000 years. The Virginia Museum of Marine Sciences is currently under construction on Owl's Creek in Virginia Beach and is expected to open in summer of 1985. When open, the 41,500 square foot facility will be a plant marine classroom where exhibits will pertain exclusively to Virginia's marine environment. The museum has been established with regional support throughout Hampton Roads and is intended to address the marine education needs of the entire state.

Going up!

Construction continues on the new Virginia Museum of Marine Sciences on Owl's Creek, with an expected summer of '85 completion. When completed the facility will house exhibits relating to Virginia's marine environment. Sun photo by Dave Olson.

Windfalls and welfare

A news story the other day provides more melancholy evidence that welfare payments have come to be regarded as a birthright in this country.

Twenty-six welfare recipients from various sections of California have filed suit in Superior Court in San Diego because their payments were reduced or canceled after they received such financial windfalls as inheritances, damage settlements or substantial insurance benefits; one of the plaintiffs had come by $48,000. They and their lobbyists, the Welfare Rights Organization of San Diego and the California Welfare Rights Organization, dispute a new rule requiring a cut-off of welfare benefits until the windfall is exhausted.

Because welfare payments should go only to the truly needy, the new rule makes sense. Windfalls and welfare are a mutually exclusive mix. But like so many regulations in the bureaucratic morass that attempt to keep a lid on welfare abuse, the new rule could encourage some recipients to blow their windfalls as quickly as possible in order to retain their welfare payments. Such welfare dilemmas, of course, are ever daunting.

Let it be said again, therefore, that welfare dollars are not manna from a heavenly government. Welfare recipients must somehow be made to realize that the payments they receive can come only from the toil of others and that, when they file suit to expand their benefits, they bite the hand that feeds them.

Mom knows best

What a relief. The respected Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., has given its official seal of approval to chicken soup. A bowl of the steaming broth really does help cold-sufferers feel better, the clinic's Health Letter says.

That doesn't come as news to mothers, of course, who since time immemorial have been making buckets of the stuff whenever anyone so much as sneezes. Now doctors are coming around to this old-fashioned remedy.

As the clinic's Health Letter notes: "Although the pharmaceutical industry makes huge profits from cold remedies—aspirin and hot beverages seem most effective in reducing symptoms. Among hot beverages, we know of nothing better than leisurely sipping a bowl of steaming chicken soup."

In other words, stop being dumb clucks and listen to your mothers.

Something to hope for

Test scores taken this year by college-bound high school seniors showed a significant increase for the first time in 20 years.

The average score earned on the College Board's Scholastic Aptitude Test remains far below those recorded in the early 1960s, but as the famous abolitionist Sojourner Truth once said, "We ain't where we oughta be, we ain't where we wanna be and we ain't where we're gonna be. But thank goodness we ain't where we was."

"Where we was" was terrible; thus the much-discussed "crisis in education."

And we have a long way to go to regain the ground lost during the past two decades. The SAT, a test of verbal and math skills taken each year by about one-third of all high school seniors, offers a perfect score of 800 in each category. In 1963, math scores averaged 502; this year's scores, although three points higher than last year's, averaged only 472. The average verbal score in 1963 was 478; this year's (one point higher than last year's) was 471.

Still, the scores finally are going up instead of falling down. It would be premature to call a one-year increase in the SAT scores a reversal of the downward trend, but the scores are the highest recorded since 1976. And, they offer some encouragement that the students earning this year's higher scores may play a significant role in making the improvement permanent.

Those high school seniors expressing an interest in becoming teachers made dramatic increases in their scores - an average seven points in math skills and four points in verbal performance. If these would-be teachers are challenged in college so their own skills continue to improve, they may be in a position a few years from now to help other students improve in the classroom.

Now there's something to hope for. —C.E.C.

Ed isn't here this week

He's in sunny San Francisco. On his honeymoon, of course. But why I asked myself that very question.

Marriage in this day and age is a tricky proposition at best. What with the rate of divorce being what it is and the prevalent social philosophy advocating personal freedom above all other considerations.

Having attended this weekend's festive celebrations, though I think I've the answer, or at least an educated guess. It's the wedding. People love them, quite often more than the institution into which they thrust the core participants.

But weddings, they are such fun. Every one all dolled-up, the bride in a dress she may never

Letters To The Editor

Beach Founder's Day, November 8

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Marshall Parks (1820-1900) was the founder of Virginia Beach. Virginia Beach was 100 years old in 1983, and owes its beginning to the railroad.

Marshall Parks was a pioneer canal builder; inventor; steamboat owner, captain, innovator, and entrepreneur. He built three canals, the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal, the Fairfield Canal, and the New Berns and Beaufort Canal. He was associated with the Dismal Swamp Canal with his father, and was superintendent after his father's death. He was postmaster and major in the militia before his twenty-first birthday. Ferdinand DeLesseps sent a representative to examine the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal before he constructed the Suez Canal.

Parks promoted the railroad to Virginia Beach, the first hotel, and Virginia Beach as a first-class resort. He was a Norfolk city councilman and a state legislator. He was appointed commissioner to organize the North Carolina Navy at the start of the Civil War, and was a commodore in the Confederate States Navy. He was appointed by President Grover Cleveland as supervising inspector of steam vessels from Baltimore to Florida. He was president of the Portsmouth Water Co.

Marshall Parks was descended from Samuel Boush, the first mayor of Norfolk, and from George Wythe's sister, Ann White. He is also descended from the family of William Congreve, English dramatist and poet, and Sir William Congreve. The latter improved the fireworks rocket, first used in the Napoleonic Wars; the rocket referred to in "The Star Spangled Banner."

His father, Marshall Parks (1786-1840), was a successful contractor, hotel owner, lumber merchant, master stonemason and steamboat owner. He was superintendent, builder, and chief engineer of the Dismal Swamp Canal.

The Virginia Beach Bicentennial Commission in 2083 may well wonder what happened to the Centennial observance. Of course, none of us will be here, so we will be spared personal embarrassment for letting the Centennial go by almost unnoticed.

Marshall Parks has not received adequate recognition for his accomplishments. Very few people in Virginia Beach have ever heard of him.

Celebration of Virginia Beach Founder's Day annually on his birthday, November 8, will be a suitable recognition of the early days of the city.

Sit right down and write...

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

I hope you will join us in celebrating National Card and Letter-Writing Week, which will be held this year November 5-11.

The purpose of National Card and Letter-Writing Week is two-fold: to stimulate public awareness of letter-writing and focus attention on the important role letters play in all our lives. In particular, we seek to highlight the power of letters to influence opinions, preserve memories and lift spirits.

Our "Volunteer Scribe" program is a highlight of this year's National Card and Letter-Writing Week.

The aim of this program is to involve students and other concerned citizens in writing and addressing letters for those who cannot do it for themselves—invalids or the elderly, for instance. We in the Postal Service hope to encourage this effort by distributing nationwide more than two million free envelopes contributed by the Envelope Manufacturers Association of America.

Along with the Postal Service, the co-sponsors of the event are the American Library Association, the National Council of Teachers of English, the National Association of Elementary School Principals, the National Association of Secondary School Principals, the American Family Society, the Greeting Card Association, the Writing Instrument Manufacturers Association and the Envelope Manufacturers Association of America.

Local author publishes book on Princess Anne County

I first met Florence Kimberly Turner through the Virginia Beach History Forum and was immediately struck by the strength and sparkle of her personality. This impression was reinforced during the Upper Wolfcreek Fair several weekends ago. A member of the Princess Anne County Historical Society and a local historian and genealogist, Turner chose this occasion to make available her new book Gateway to the New World: A History of Princess Anne County, Virginia 1706-1824. Many people came specifically to purchase her book and lingered in groups to chat with the white haired, witty author concerning Princess Anne history, or the trials of writing and publishing a book. I purchased a copy of "Gateway" as during the 11 years I have been a resident of Virginia Beach, I have been in search of its history. I had begun to recognize names and places, but I lacked a coherent time line and the anecdotal knowledge which breathes life into the bare facts. In "Gateway" I found the

Elsewhere on this page, you'll find what we think and what our columnists and cartoonists think. But what, we ask, do you think?

What do you think about our fair city? Our police department? Our schools? Downtown redevelopment? The city manager? City Council? We want to hear from you and give you the chance to share your opinions with others. Write us a letter and tell us what you think about the world around us or about the newspaper itself.

We don't care what you write about. You're entitled to your opinion, and that's what this page is for—to provide a forum for your expression. wear again. But really, she was stunning, and I found myself falling back on old, childhood dreams of enormous white gowns smothered in lace and fake pearls, crisp new white underthings - all new and all made to match. The whole notion is so devilishly seductive. All your dearest friends in the same room with your parents, and they are all admiring you. On what other occasion could you get them to all show up together and pay you heaps of compliments all for the price of a little champagne. And if you don't have to worry about paying for all the fun, so much the better.

Honestly though, I had a wonderful time. And felt quite comfortable with all my romantic life dreams when I pulled myself down out of the fantasies and was reassured that it was someone else's wedding.

We do need our rights of passage as well as our sense of humor. We seem to have so few of them left anymore. Personally, I am glad they had a wedding. I will leave the symbolic significance of the act to the imagination of the dear reader.

Chapel is more than a church

By Lee Cahill

The Sandbridge Chapel, described as "more than a church," is planning a build a 200-250 seat sanctuary. Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon granted the chapel a use permit by a vote of 10-0 to construct the building on a 1.62-acre parcel at the northeast and southeast intersections of Little Island Road and Bonita Lane.

Robert Cromwell, attorney representing the Chapel, said that the chapel is "more than a church," that it serves as an all-purpose building for the Beach community. At his request, Council waived a condition that the church dedicate 15 feet of right-of-way along Sandpiper Road for the ultimate construction of the 90-foot-wide Ferrell Parkway.

The dedication along with the required 30 foot setback would leave the church with 89 feet for the building. Cromwell said that the construction of the highway is remote and suggested instead that the church agree not to place any structure on the 15 feet so that if the property is needed later for the road, it would be available. Cromwell said that he doubted that anyone there would live to see a major highway going down the middle of Sandbridge.

Beach musicians nominated for "All American" band

VIRGINIA BEACH—It's not often that talented high school students are nominated to be "All-Americans". For Lisa Cee-Cee Parker and Marla Yvonne Rios, years of musical dedication and hard work have paid off. Parker and Rios have been nominated to the 1984 McDonald's All-American High School Band.

Parker and Rios were nominated for the All-American Band by David A. Mitchele, band director at Bayside High School, on the basis of their musical honors and solo contest ratings. Students selected to the 1984 All-American Band will be notified in mid-October.

The nomination was announced by Jim White, owner/operator of the McDonald's restaurant at 4608 Haygood Road in Virginia Beach. "It's a pleasure for us to see motivated young people get the recognition they deserve," said White. "We're proud of Lisa and Marla because only the best high school musicians in the country are nominated to the All-American Band."

McDonald's All-American

Band program was created in 1967 to honor outstanding high school musicians. Every year, band directors across the country are invited to nominate two of their finest musicians for membership in the Band. From the almost 5,000 nominations received, 105 students—two from each state and the District of Columbia, plus one member each from the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Guam—are selected to represent their homes in the All-American unit.

This year these musical All-Americans will perform in the nationally-televised Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City, the Fiesta Bowl Parade, December 29 in Phoenix, Arizona and the Tournament of Roses Parade, on New Year's Day in Pasadena, California.

Selection to the All-American Band enables a student to be eligible for music scholarships awarded by the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Massachusetts; the National Music Camp, Interlochen, Michigan; and the Shenandoah College and Conservatory of Music, Winchester, Virginia.

School superintendent appears on "Citytalk"

VIRGINIA BEACH—Dr. E. E. Brickell, division superintendent of the Virginia Beach City Public Schools, will discuss his perceptions of the Virginia Beach School system November 13, on Channel 29's "Citytalk" at 9 a.m.

"Citytalk" airs new shows and guests every two weeks on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 8 p.m.; and Tuesday and Thursday at 9 a.m.

"Citytalk" is a half-hour interview/news conference type program combining area high school students, an adult moderator and timely discussion of topics with Virginia Beach government and school officials.

Future guests include Police Chief Charles Wall, the week of November 26, and City Council Member Barbara Henley the week of December 10.

City Manager Thomas Muchlenbeck was the inaugural guest for the program on October 1. Diane Roche (Office of Public Information) moderates the show directing students' questions to the show's guest. Questions for "Citytalk" are obtained from the seven area high school social studies classes.

Ferrante & Teicher appear at Pavilion

VIRGINIA BEACH—The world's best-known piano duo will appear in concert with The Virginia Symphony Pops on Sunday, November 11, at 7:30 p.m. in Virginia Beach's Pavilion.

Ferrante & Teicher will join the Pops for performances of Slaughter on Tenth Avenue by Richard Rodgers, Stephen Sondheim's Send In The Clowns, Jerome Kern's Ol' Man River and selections from "The Sound of Music." The program, with guest conductor Harold Bauer, will also include Nicolai's Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," selections from Bizet's "Carmen" and the Suite from "The Merry Widow" by Lehár.

Arthur Ferrante and Louis Teicher have been friends since they were enrolled as six-year-old piano prodigies at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. As teenagers, they decided to become a team, so after graduation and appointment to Juilliard's Theory Department, they began preparation for a professional career as duo-pianists.

"Two piano ensemble technique is very difficult to master," Teicher said recently, "because it isn't a duplication of notes, but four hands creating a unique sound. Both pianists must function with complete rapport to create the nuances and artistic balance necessary for a finished product."

In the early 1950's the pair began touring as classical pianists. They received critical acclaim and growing audiences, but international prominence didn't come until their 1960 recording of the theme from the motion picture The Apartment. The record sold almost a million copies in its first three weeks. Shortly afterward they recorded

Exodus. Their popularity became assured, as thousands of sold-out concerts, 113 albums and 21 gold records prove.

Although they do not really look alike except for dark hair and glasses, so many people insisted they did that they now use the idea in their performances.

"You think we look alike from out there?" Ferrante will say to an audience. "Well, let me tell you that from up here you all look alike, too!"

Tickets for The Virginia Symphony Pops performance ($9 to $16) are available at First Virginia Bank branches and Pavilion Box Office.

Gas station proposal denied

before I had a chance to pull a gun out."

He said the property was zoned business in 1967 and that the residents should have known that the property was zoned B-2 Business.

McClanan moved for denial. Council members then engaged in a discussion about fences and shrubbery which turned out to be pointless as Council voted 10-0 to deny the application. Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy, Jr. was absent.

McClanan remarked that she had heard that argument earlier in the day, that because the property was zoned 10 to 15 years ago, it was good, but, she said, "cutting trees is not a good way to do business."

McClanan had referred to an earlier discussion of the Foxfire and Courthouse Estates subdivisions which had been rezoned 11 to 14 years ago and now represent residential zoning in the midst of an agricultural area.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. said that he didn't want the shrubbery to mean "three scrubby little pine trees" and wanted to leave the plantings up to the discretion of the staff.

McClanan was having none of that either. She said that the staff's interpretation of the ordinance is very lenient.

Jennings tried again. He said, "Thick, heavy plantings to obscure any view from the residences."

Then Mayor Harold Heischob pointed out that one of the requirements of a use permit is that it be compatible with the neighborhood. By its vote, Council did not think the gas station would be compatible.

Navy to brief city

Virginia Beach City Council is asking the Navy for more information on the proposed construction of the Empress II offshore which would be used to determine the effects of nuclear explosions on Naval shipping.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. said that tentative dates for the briefings by the Navy have been set by Council for the early part of December at a regular Council meeting or at a special workshop the middle part of November when Council also may consider the report of the Virginia Beach Resort Area Advisory Commission which was presented two weeks ago.

Jennings, who introduced the subject at Monday afternoon's Council meeting, said that the Navy is considering three sites.

Two in the Northern part of the Chesapeake Bay and one which would be 15 miles off the coast of Virginia Beach where it intersects with the North Carolina line.

The purpose of the tower which would be constructed, he said, is to duplicate the electromagnetic waves experienced by the detonation of a nuclear warhead and the effect on the electronics on Navy ships. He said that the city does not know enough and that some fishing interests also don't have enough information.

He said that public hearings have been scheduled at the bay areas but not in Virginia Beach. The tower would be 100 to 150 feet high, and while the project may be totally harmless, Jennings said that the people do not know enough now.

Crime Line

The Virginia Beach Crime Solvers program is looking for two men, Raymond Keith Vaughn and Ezekiel Dempsey Morris. They are wanted in connection with several crimes committed in Virginia Beach and if a call to Crime Solvers leads to their apprehension, the caller will be paid up to $1,000 in cash.

Raymond Vaughn is a 40 year old white male with brown hair, blue eyes, 5'7" tall, and weighs 170 pounds. He is wanted in connection with passing seven felony and 10 misdemeanor worthless checks written for approximately $3,500. Vaughn is also wanted by Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Chesapeake for 15 worthless check charges. He has used several aliases including James William Boggs, William Ray Bowman, and Pat Keith Vaughn.

The second person being sought, Zeke Morris, is a white male, 20 years old, 5'9" tall, and weighs 140 pounds. Morris is wanted for 3 burglaries in Virginia Beach between September 29 and October 19 of this year. He is also wanted for violation of probation involving a previous burglary charge.

Never put butter on a burn

Burns - If the skin is not broken, apply a soft cloth soaked in household ammonia. This method works wonders on minor burns. You can also try one-quarter cup of linseed oil with the juice of one-half lemon. Lightly rub the mixture over the affected area. Or you can apply equal parts, or two tablespoons, of glycerine and the white of an egg. Rub it on gently, then bind the burn with a strip of soft cloth. A small bottle of cold, strong tea kept near the stove is also a very good burn reliver. Never put butter on a burn. Butter can actually irritate and contaminate a burn. If it is a minor burn, run cold water over it, then apply a cold compress.

Burnt-On Food In Pots and Pans, Removing - Cover the burnt food with an inch of cold water, add two teaspoons of baking soda, and bring slowly to a boil. Then simmer for twelve to fifteen minutes. Discard the water and wash the pan in hot, sudsy water.

Butter, Clarifying - Let unsalted butter stand in a small container over a very low heat until melted. Gently pour off the butter, leaving the sediment in the bottom. Cool and use.

By Chuck Faulkner

Butter, Softening - Fill a glass bowl, just big enough to cover the hard butter, with boiling water. After a minute, pour the water out and immediately cover the butter with the upside down bowl. Heat from the warmed bowl will soften it in a few minutes.

Butter, Stretching - Cut a pound of butter into small pieces and allow it to soften. Dissolve an envelope of unflavored gelatin in one-quarter cup of cold water and add this mixture to one and three-quarters cups of boiling fresh milk. Remove from heat and allow to cool. After beating the softened butter in a bowl, add the milk/gelatin mixture a little at a time, stirring constantly. Refrigerate it and it's ready for use. Note: This is for table use only, not for cooking.

Buttons - If buttons keep coming off, use dental floss instead of thread. It is twice as strong.

Give your home a pre-winter tune-up

A winter house tune-up is important for homeowners who want to keep their energy and maintenance costs down through the coming cold months.

Before cold weather arrives, owners should check through their homes carefully, looking for and correcting defects that could cause problems later on. Particularly important are unplugged cracks and outlets, inadequate insulation and improper ventilation. These defects can result in infiltration of cold air, heat loss and excess moisture in the home.

Infiltration, generally around windows, doors and other outlets, is the prime reason for heat loss in older houses. To avoid this problem, see that storm windows and doors fit tightly and that all outlets, including cracked or gaping siding, are properly caulked. The sill plate, where a wood frame house rests on its foundation, also may need caulking.

It also is a good idea to install weatherstripping around doors. There are many kinds of commercial weatherstripping. Felt is an inexpensive type that is effective when properly applied around the perimeter of the door. Insulation, where properly applied, can prevent up to 40 percent of the total heat loss in a home.

In the attic, insulation of R 19-30 is needed, and a vapor barrier of polyethylene plastic, aluminum foil or tar coated craft paper should be placed face down to the living space before the insulation is applied. Applying insulation to the ducts of a forced air heating unit or adding a secondary blanket of insulation to a hot water tank located in an uninsulated area also will reduce heat loss.

Wall insulation can prevent up to 15 percent of heat loss, but because correct application is very difficult and most homeowners cannot do it themselves, costs are high. Proper ventilation is necessary to prevent excess moisture in the living space, a problem that may occur even in homes that are properly insulated and protected against infiltration.

Water vapor that penetrates the wall cavity will condense on the cold surface of insulation and render it useless, it also can rot wood and cause other structural problems.

To avoid these difficulties, homeowners should make sure that bathrooms, kitchens and laundry areas are well vented to the outside. In addition, a vapor barrier, in the form of primer sealer paint, plastic or vinyl wall paper, or paneling, should be applied on inside wall ceiling surfaces.

Two square feet of ventilation should be allowed for every 300 square feet of attic floor space. If the area has poor circulation, then an attic fan may be necessary.

New library building expands CBN University outreach

CBN University, now in its seventh year, enters a new dimension as a major center for research, scholarship and satellite communications with its massive new four-story, $13.2-million library building.

The 152,000-square-foot Georgian-designed library is the heart of a rapidly growing cluster of graduate schools that constitute CBN University, which shares a 685-acre campus with its sponsoring organization, The Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc.

The new facilities are the centerpiece for what is believed to be a unique new concept of a national and world university by satellite television, through the CBN University. Combined with the CBN Cable Network's outreach to 25.1 million U.S. households and CBN's global satellite capabilities, the new concept is expected to have major impact on higher education.

The CBNU graduate library is one of the most technologically sophisticated in the nation, fully computerized, linked to more than 6,000 libraries nationwide and accessing more than 100 data bases. The library has the potential for housing 600,000 bound volumes and one million microforms. Special collections already include one of hymns and another of religious films.

The library currently provides research support for six graduate programs.

"Never before in the history of the world has there been such an opportunity for education, ministry and media to come together in one mission," said Dr. Hedges. "The potential for influencing the world is extremely significant."

Stihl entertains new consumer products at New York conference

Stihl Incorporated of Virginia Beach recently hosted a press conference in New York City to introduce several new additions to its consumer power product line. More than 20 editors of the nation's leading outdoors and home improvement magazines attended the luncheon and conference, where they had the opportunity to personally test the new products on display.

Much attention during the press conference was focused on Stihl's new consumer chain saw, the 011 Top Handle. Weighing under 10 lbs. (with a 12 inch bar and chain), the model 011 AVETQZ offers the tremendous power to weight ratio characteristic of all Stihl saws. The really unique feature of this new model, however, is the placement of the rear handle to the top of the saw. This "top handle" provides superior control and easier access to tight areas, a feature for homeowners.

Editors began arriving shortly after noon at New York's Water Club restaurant, a converted barge located on the bank of the East River. Despite a heavy downpour, many of Stihl's guests ventured out onto the canopied "Outer Deck" to participate in product demonstrations of Stihl's consumer gasoline-powered and electric chain saws, trimmers, hedge trimmers, and blowers.

Editors were instructed in the safe operating techniques for all the products by Ed Fleming, Nick Tengeriello, Ray Zegel, and Mike O'Grady of Metropolitan Stihl, Parsippany, New Jersey, who set up and conducted the demonstrations.

Inside, Stihl hosts Fred Noe, president, Don Kyle, executive vice president, Bob Van Here's how...

Despite a heavy downpour outside the canopied demonstration area, editors gathered in full force to participate in demonstrations of the Stihl products introduced at the press conference. Photo by Fred Marcus.

Schelven, regional manager, Jack Guthrie, marketing services manager; Jackson D'Armond, advertising manager, and Maisie Bell, marketing services specialist, welcomed the editors to the press conference. During the cocktail hour, and again after the conference had officially ended, editors were able to view Stihl's new consumer product television commercials and safety films on VHS units.

After dining on a sumptuous seafood feast, the editors listened as President Fred Noe outlined the Stihl operation on a worldwide and on a national basis. Noe invited the editors present to visit Virginia Beach to tour the plants and see first-hand Stihl's commitment to quality. Executive Vice President Don Kyle followed up with a status report of Stihl marketing activities and a review of new products.

The press conference concluded shortly before 3 p.m. as editors each received a press kit containing facts and photos of all the Stihl products they had seen in action. The luncheon and press conference gave Stihl the chance to renew old friendships with many of the editors present and to lay the groundwork for new relationships with these important links to the consumer market.

Agricultural products promoted in Europe

RICHMOND - Continued aggressive promotion directed toward potential buyers as well as close communication with the Virginia exporter is imperative to maintain a reasonable market share for Virginia agricultural products in Europe, North Africa and The Middle East. This according to Franz J. Schmidt, director of the European Office of the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Schmidt pointed out that Virginia companies have been able to continue selling abroad and new-to-export companies to initiate marketing activities, at least in part due to the long term activities by Virginia's government to increase agricultural export sales. The strong US dollar, which increases the cost of all American products, has made the export market for agricultural products more competitive than ever.

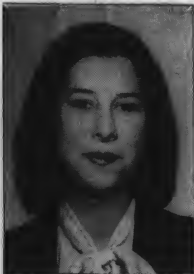

Schmidt, in charge of Virginia's agricultural office in Belgium since 1979, recently spent three weeks in The Old Dominion meeting with established and new-to-market exporters. During his brief travel in Virginia, Schmidt met with representatives of thirty six Virginia companies dealing with a dozen different agricultural products. Exportable Virginia products range from fresh apples to logs and lumber, seafood to horses. In consultation with Virginia companies, Schmidt assists them in product and market evaluation for the twenty countries with which he works. Product acceptability depends on the culture, import requirements and any trade barriers of the importing country. Relatively strong markets now exist for peanuts and forestry products, with increased market shares for apples and processed foods anticipated.

Contel gets rate hike, plans service changes

VIRGINIA BEACH - Continental Telephone of Virginia will implement several changes for customers along with increased rates, said Mike Hall, local manager-telephone services in Virginia Beach.

In September Continental received $9.1 million in rate relief, Hall said. The average monthly increase, effective this past October 1, will be 31 percent.

With the new rates, the exchanges of Princess Anne, Pungo, and Shipp's Corner will be able to subscribe to Optional Usage Pricing Service, a local calling plan that allows customers to control the cost of their local phone bills. With Usage Pricing, local calls are measured by duration, distance, and time of day of each call.

Customers leasing single line telephones will have the option of either buying their phones or returning them to Continental. Hall said if a customer chooses to pay for the telephone over 12 months, Continental will provide a warranty for that period of time. Customers will be receiving a more information about the phone ownership plan.

Customers will have the option of maintaining their own inside wire, or Continental will maintain it for 40¢ a line per month. Inside wire starts at the point where the wire enters your home and runs to and includes the jack or connecting block on your wall.

Customers with key systems or PBX systems will have the option of maintaining their inside wire, or Continental will maintain it and bill for maintenance work.

Three other new charges were approved. There will be a $38.50 charge to restore service after disconnection for non-payment. A 1½ percent late payment charge will be applied to unpaid balances. Operator assisted charges will apply to the transfer of billing charges of local usage pricing calls or pay station calls to a third number.

Continental Telephone provides service to 11,000 customers in the exchanges of Princess Anne, Pungo, Shipp's Corner, and Knotts Island, NC.

Tax break on mortgage cuts interest cost

Mortgage interest rates are never as high as they seem.

That's because the income tax advantage gained by home buyers lowers the effective rate of interest on mortgage loans, says he said.

For example, Price points out that for a married couple filing an itemized joint return (Form 1040), the effective rate of interest on a 14 percent mortgage loan works out to be 11 percent if the couple has a combined taxable income of $25,000.

However, if combined income is $30,000, the effective interest rate drops to 10½ percent because the couple has moved into a higher tax bracket.

If the couple earned $60,000 the effective rate on the same 14 percent mortgage loan would be 8½ percent. With $85,000 in income, the effective rate drops another half percent.

Price points out that the effective mortgage interest rate for unmarried home buyers filing a single return will be between ½ and 1½ percent lower than those filing jointly, depending upon income level.

Real Estate
By Roger Pyle

Alan N. Price, senior vice president and Gulf regional manager for Chicago Title Insurance Company of Illinois.

"The effective interest rate paid will always be less than the actual rate quoted by a mortgage lender. How much less will depend upon how much taxable income the home buyer earns,"

Council approves cab fare increases

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Taxicab rate increases approved by Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon represent a 15.09 percent increase on the average 4.77 mile fare. The minimum $1 charge will be based on the first one-fifth, rather one-eighth, of a mile or fraction thereof and rates on succeeding one-fifth of a mile, upped from one-eighth, have been increased from 10 to 20 cents.

According to Lee Hedberg, of the city's research department, the rates will equalize Virginia Beach rates with those charged in Norfolk. The last increase was granted in 1979.

The Beach/Bayside/Coastal cab companies have experienced net losses over the last ten years, while Yellow/Diamond cab companies have realized modest net incomes over those years.

Book on PA county

historical continuity I sought. A sense of the flavor of life in Princess Anne County during the early years of its existence permeates the text. Adam Thoroughgood becomes unforgettable as a very exacting, proud man who among other things took to court a woman who in the heat of a disagreement "did in a shameful, uncomely, and irreverent manner, bid Capt. Thoroughgood kiss her arse, with the assignation of many unusual terms". For this offense, she was to receive 20 lashes on her bare shoulders and was required to ask public forgiveness both in court and in church.

Through Turner's book not only is specific Princess Anne County history described, but also much of the background of later southern and Virginia history becomes clear: the sense of isolation and individuality produced by plantation life leading away from the town center organization which characterized New England life; the dependence on English shipping and goods and the currency-less economy which would figure so heavily in the North/South economic struggle presaging the Civil War; the early conflicts concerning slavery.

The book is definitely popular history. While its accuracy is without question due to the depth of research evidenced, Turner's use of "our" and "here" along with occasional editorial comments concerning modern effects on historical sites gives a personalized flavor to the reading. It is this fact in particular which separates the book from historical writing, which tends to be dry and tedious, and that style of writing which is fresh and interesting. I thoroughly enjoyed these injections of Turner's personality into the text. A tendency to repetition of information might have been eliminated through more rigorous editing. Less non-Princess Anne County detail concerning the Revolution and the War of 1812 might have made for a smoother flow. These weaknesses, however, are quite minor in light of the strengths of the entire text.

Florence Kimberly Turner has written an engaging, informative history of our area and I recommend it highly to all in quest of our past.

City approves change of interstate name

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

The City of Virginia Beach is agreeable to changing the designation of I-64 from the I-264/I-44 Interchange to Bowers Hill to eliminate confusion which now exists.

However, Public Works Director John Lambert told City Council Monday afternoon that he would first want some input from the business interests along the highway which may use the road designation. Also he would like assurances that changing the name of the road would have no adverse affect on the improvements scheduled for I-64.

The mix-up results in that I-64 is an east-west route, but for the last section of the Interstate, to Bowers Hill, the actual direction of travel differs from the assigned route direction. If someone is traveling toward Bowers Hill or Suffolk, he is actually headed west but the route designation is I-64 east.

The most recent solution was to remove the east and west route markers and rely on name and locations on the directional signing. However, according to Traffic engineer John W. Herzke this is non-standard for interstate highways.

Consequently, the Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation is proposing to provide a new route number for this segment (probably I-664 or a similar east-west designated number). Then the proper route markers could be installed so that westbound and eastbound would correspond to the actual direction of travel I-664 would be westbound going toward Bowers Hill and eastbound going toward Virginia Beach.

I-664 is the designation given the route from the Hampton Coliseum, and this segment would probably eventually connect with that route.

Top assistants reorganized

Managerial changes near

By Lee Cahill

Virginia Beach City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck expects to have his full complement of top administrators within two weeks.

In the meantime, at his request, City Council recently removed from the city's pay plan the four administrative positions created under the manager's reorganization plan, formerly approved by Council.

The offices include those of deputy city manager for development, assistant city manager for administration, assistant city manager for human services and assistant city manager for analysis and evaluation.

Under the ordinance approved by Council Monday afternoon, the officers would serve at the pleasure of the city manager and would be placed on a purely merit basis. That is, cost of living increases which may be approved across the board for other employees would not be available to the administrators.

The salaries of the four administrators would be in the $60,000 to $70,000 range, Muehlenbeck told Council. Only one of these positions, the assistant city manager for administration, has been filled. Giles Dodd, whose title had been assistant to the city manager in charge of finance, has been transferred to that post. Muehlenbeck said recently that he would announce the other three administrators within two weeks.

Two weeks ago Council approved an ordinance which set the order in which the administrators would serve in the absence of the city manager—deputy city manager for development, assistant city manager for administration, assistant city manager for analysis and evaluation and assistant city manager for human services.

Council also had earmarked $150,000 to finance the reorganization.

Under the previous organization, four assistants to the city manager made up the top echelon. The position in public relations held by Samuel Clay, See MANAGER, page 7

Hospice program

Volunteers bring light to terminally ill patients

By Lee Cahill

City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach Hospice volunteers are a little-heralded, dedicated group of people who have found a way to bring some pleasure and comfort to the terminally ill and their families.

But they're quick to tell you that they receive more from their work than they put into it.

The 30 Virginia Beach volunteers recently selected two among them whom they consider the most outstanding for the quality of their work and voted them the outstanding volunteers of the year.

They are Beverly Foley, of 833 Bobolink Drive, and Bill Meyer, of 2312 Wolfenbarger Drive.

Foley became so interested in her volunteer activity that she is now enrolled in the school of practical nursing at the Virginia Beach Vocational-Technical School.

Meyer so impressed the widow of a man he had befriended that she is working toward winning the approval of her King's Daughters Circle to include the Hospice among the circle's beneficiaries.

To bring attention to Hospice services, President Ronald Reagan has declared November National Hospice Month, and Mayor Harold Heischouer has also proclaimed Hospice month for Virginia Beach.

Under the program, a volunteer, with perhaps a backup volunteer, is assigned to a patient to whom he or she tries to provide personal attention relating to the physical, emotional and spiritual needs of the individual.

A 15-man board made up mostly of professionals oversees the work of the group. Dr. Vincent Speckheart, an oncologist, started the local group six years ago and serves as president, and Don Dahlman is vice president of the Board.

Margaret Colonna, a volunteer coordinator, happened on the organization by chance. The mother of three, she had returned to school at Virginian Wesleyan College and needed a project as to meet requirements of a course on organization taken in her junior year. She said Vice Mayor Reba McClanahan knew of Hospice through City Clerk Ruth Smith,

A certificate of appreciation...

...is presented to Beverly Foley, one of two Hospice volunteers who were chosen from 30. Jean Riddle, volunteer coordinator, presents the award. Sun photo by Dave Olson

who is on the board, and referred Colonna to her.

Colonna is now not only one of the chief advocates of the organization, but a member of its Board.

Foley, who is a member of the Rock Church, was chiefly interested in helping the elderly. She has adopted an 82-year-old invalid woman with no family, and when she learned of hospice through the Cardinal Garden Club, it was easy for her to step in as a volunteer. Foley also is a volunteer for Meals on Wheels, has coached girls basketball, is a member of the Tidewater Association of Retarded Children (TARC) and formerly taught first grade at the Star of the Sea Catholic Church School. When she returned to school as a student, she has been out of Princess Anne High School for 26 years.

She has been with Hospice only a year and a half, but during that time has made her mark. Foley said many people think the work must be depressing, "but she hasn't found it that way. Working with the patients has made her realize that life is a gift and not a privilege. She and her husband Robert have three children between the ages of 16 and 25.

Meyer is a retired chief of police for the Chesapeake Bay Tunnel Commission, a position he held for 18 years. Before that he was a criminal investigator for the Treasury Department for two years, and before that an Army officer for 22 years. He also is a volunteer for Meals on Wheels, a member of the International Chiefs of Police, the Retired Officers Association, the National Advisory Board for the American Service Council, and past senior warden of St. Francis Episcopal Church. He and his wife Hazel Marie have three children.

Meyer joined Hospice last

March and since then has lost his one patient. This patient and Meyer found that they had a friend in common and their hours together were filled with reminiscences which added quality to the patient's dying days. The man's family was so impressed that his widow is trying to get her King's Daughters Circle to help the group.

Although the services of the volunteers are free, Colonna said that Hospice requires office space, donated by the Princess Anne Plaza owners, a telephone answering service, brochures, office supplies and training for volunteers by professionals. Hospice now has a volunteer running the office three days a week from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., but Colonna said the organization would like to have a paid worker also so that the office would be accessible to the public on a regular basis. The volunteer, Jean Riddle is also a volunteer coordinator.

Hospice also provides transportation for patients to and from doctor's offices and gas money, when available for volunteers.

Sons of Italy

Benefit dinner planned

VIRGINIA BEACH—Roma Lodge, Order Sons of Italy in America, will sponsor a benefit dinner, November 18, for a Virginia Beach man who was severely injured in an automobile-bicycle accident this past summer.

All proceeds from the dinner, which will begin at 5 p.m., at Roma Lodge, 3097 Magic Hollow Boulevard, Virginia Beach, will go to help defray some medical expenses and to purchase necessary rehabilitation equipment for John "Butch" Tricca, son of John and Grace Tricca, also of Virginia Beach.

Young Tricca, 23, was left paralyzed from the waist down by the accident and is confined to a wheelchair at the home of his parents.

Guest speakers at the affair will be two courageous Virginia Beach men. One is Skip Wilkins, 34, who is a world champion wheelchair athlete and who was a skilled athlete before a water skiing accident in 1967, three days after graduating from high school, left him paralyzed. Wilkins has been recognized worldwide and has continued in competitive sports despite his disabling injury. In 1980 he was named National Wheelchair Athlete of the Year.

Skip Wilkins is also an author, having written a best selling book, The Real Race. Wilkins presented a copy of the book to President Ronald Reagan on a recent visit to Washington, D.C.

The other guest speaker will be another celebrated individual, Morris "Miracle Man" Goodman. Goodman, an insurance agent, survived a near fatal airplane crash, and was left with a broken neck at the first and second vertebra, most of the bones in his face smashed, and his spinal cord jarred, resulting in near total paralysis. For two months Goodman could control only his eyelids.

Goodman is also an author. His book, Miracle Man, details his ordeal and takes its title from the name he was given by the nurses and doctors who treated him.

Tickets for the benefit are $15 per person and may be purchased by calling Remo Castellano, 340-8055; Louis Socia, 486-1297; or Roma Lodge, 468-2029. Sun readers desiring to make monetary contributions can send them to the Butch Tricca Recovery Drive Committee, c/o Roma Lodge, #254, 3097 Magic Hollow Boulevard, Virginia Beach, VA 23456.

Turkeywalk pledge event set

The American Heart Association's "Turkeywalk," a walk-for-pledges event, is scheduled for 1 p.m., Sunday, November 18, at Seashore State Park on Shore Drive.

All participants will receive Turkeywalk memorabilia and top pledge earners can even earn a turkey. A per-mile pledge of $1 is suggested from sponsors, and participants may walk as much, or little of the 5-mile trail as they wish.

Sun readers who wish more information on the event should call Judy Howland of The American Heart Association, 857-5961.

Krummell named to Planning commission

By Lee Cahill

City Council Reporter

Charles R. Krummell, an architect, was recently elected to fill a slot on the Virginia Beach Planning Commission in a rare contest for the post.

Generally all the discussion over appointees to boards and commissions takes place in executive sessions so that only one nomination for one post is placed before City Council at the public election. However, after Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. nominated Krummell, Councilman Louis R. Jones nominated Dean Williams, a realtor.

The vote was 6-5 for Krummell who will fill the unexpired term of Hassell E. Perrell which expires December 31, 1986. Perrell has made his major residence in Suffolk and has resigned. He has not attended meetings for three months leaving only ten members on the Commission, which has led to some tie votes.

Voting for Krummell were Mayor Harold Heischouer, Councilmen Jennings, John A. Baum, Dr. J. Henry McCoy, Jr. and Robert Fentress and Councilwoman Nancy Creech. These six have constituted the majority on a number of issues since Heischouer became mayor in July. Voting against Krummell were Councilwoman Barbara Henley and Meyera Oberdorf, Vice Mayor Reba McClanahan, and Councilmen L. Jones and Robert G. Jones.

Charity begins at home

Charity begins at home—and often ends there. Despite their lofty goals, charitable Americans have failed to feed all the hungry people in our country.

Government aides is the traditional alternative to charity. Despite billions of dollars and millions of meals, the government has also failed to feed thousands of hungry families in America.

In a land of plenty, there remains hunger. In a land of big government, there remain small mouths to feed.

Is there no way to fill hungry bellies and nourish aching bodies?

Yes, there is, the Rev. Cal Shelton of San Diego told the House Select Committee on Hunger in Washington recently. If the hungry are willing to share in the job of buying food in bulk and distributing it to their fellows, they can get a balanced diet at a fraction of the retail cost.

Shelton, a deacon in the Catholic church, is the director of an innovative program called the Self-Help and Resource Exchange (SHARE), which is providing food to 60,000 people a month in Southern California.

SHARE is not a charity or a government agency. It's a volunteer food cooperative that uses the buying power of thousands of people willing to contribute $12 and two hours of work to get between $35 and $40 of quality food. SHARE boxes contain meat, produce, bread, staples and multiple-vitamin supplements—not junk food. SHARE is sponsored by the Catholic Diocese of San Diego. But it is open to all people. And SHARE people are proud to be paying and working for their food.

Which is not to say generosity is not involved. It is. Food producers and merchants have sold their products at cost to SHARE, even though there is no tax deduction for doing so. And people have given their time to help do the buying and packaging.

But the keys to SHARE are self-help and cooperation. SHARE is not a substitute for charity or an excuse for government to turn its back on the hungry. It is a supplement to existing food programs.

SHARE began in San Diego—but it must not end there. Legislators in Washington and people concerned with hunger across America should listen to Shelton carefully. He has developed a program which, if given tax incentives and long-term, low-interest loans, could help millions of Americans feed themselves. In an era when charity is sorely strained and the deficit looms over government food programs, this may be the best hope remaining to end hunger in America.

Pulling in the green

Walter Byers, executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, says that recent disclosures of illegal payments to student athletes raise serious doubts as to whether big-time football and basketball programs are actually controlled by school presidents and their governing boards.

Notre Dame's basketball coach, Richard "Digger" Phelps, expressed similar concerns two years ago—and raised some hackles—when he said the going college rate for a blue-chip player is between $10,000 and $20,000, in addition to the substantial fringe benefits. Cheating in college sports isn't new. The stakes are simply higher now with the lure of multimillion-dollar television contracts and huge football stadiums to be filled on Saturdays. The crowds and TV cameras aren't interested in losers. Neither are the college alumni who contribute money and channel athletes to their alma maters.

So pronounced is the play-for-pay problem that several athletic directors suggest open financial compensation for top student-athletes. Indeed, the American Council on Education recommended this alternative three years ago to avert the "crisis" that threatens "to discredit our institutions."

Yet the cynicism inherent in such an accommodation is contrary to everything that amateur sports are supposed to signify. Moreover, it is an affront to numerous colleges and coaches who play by the NCAA rules and still produce quality athletic programs.

Letters To The Editor

More on military wives

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

In response to letters from second wives of military members hoping that a Federal law which would allow long-term military spouses to re-open their divorce cases would be unfair to military members, I wish to assure them that when we ex-military spouses ask for a Federal mandate to allow our cases to be reviewed, it is not with the intent of cheating our ex-husbands. On the contrary, what we wish is justice for both military member and military spouse. It is just as wrong for a law and a court to cheat a husband as it is a wife. But most long-term military wives have been cheated out of their pro-rata share of the pension they helped earn. Statistically, we are the poorest class in the U.S.

Perhaps what we ask for will be better understood if we use a house as an analogy. Suppose that until February 1983 the law forbade that a woman could have any part of the house that she and her husband owned and lived in together since it was the husband's money that made the payments. The wife's contribution to the marital partnership could not be considered by law. Everyone would be aghast and call that an evil, dishonest law. But that is precisely what the law was with regard to the military pension prior to February 1983. Generally, in all but eight community property states, the pension was off-limits to the wife at time of divorce. Divorced military wives quite often came out of a 30-year (or longer) marriage with little more than the clothes on their backs, while their husbands walked off with the huge military pensions they had earned together, usually the only thing they had amassed that was worth anything.

We ex-military wives say that such a system was and is wrong. Women were cheated by such unfair military divorce laws. In fact, we say "robbed" is the right word. Now if someone had robbed you, you ought to be able to go to court to reclaim what was stolen from you no matter when the crime took place. That is what we long-serving military wives wish. We wish to reclaim what is morally ours and which should legally be ours no matter when the divorce took place. We ask only for what we earned. We have no wish to steal that which belongs to our ex-husbands. We do not wish to undo one crime by committing another. We ask only for a review of our cases by an impartial judge. If justice was done in the first place, military members and second spouses have nothing to fear.

On Bruce Price's new novel

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

I want to thank you for running a review of my new novel American D'r'e'a'm's. I agree with everything Toni Lohmann said. But I wish she had gone on to say that all the stories and subplots in the book are cleverly intertwined and finally resolved. Further, that the complexity is not gratuitous but a metaphor for the life we all lead.

Change and mobility, more than any other traits, distinguish America from all other countries and cultures. American D'r'e'a'm's tries to capture this. Still Toni made it clear that this is not a novel for people who read Judith Krantz. But I do commend it to those who like their literary fare rich and hearty.

The rise and fall of Mary Cunningham

Powerplay/What Really Happened at Bendix by Mary Cunningham with Fran Schumer, according to its bookjacket, "an extraordinary business document, a moving personal story and a book that reveals, as no other has, what still happens when a woman gets to the top."

While this reader would hardly describe Mary Cunningham's public airing of her role in the famous Bendix leadership fiasco in those terms, expressions of martyrdom to apply. The chronicle does hold one's attention but not for the reasons expected. Cunningham's personal account is of interest because it settles, for once and for all, how her rapid rise to corporate power soured so quickly. It was just not a case of American business vs.

an American female.

The public recognizes Cunningham as the attractive Harvard MBA selected by Bendix's boy wonder William Agee to be his executive assistant in 1979. A year later, he promoted her to a corporate vice-presidency in charge of public relations. During that time, rumors surrounded the then-married Agee and Cunningham both, both in and out of the boardroom.

In chronological progression, their suggested affair then remained in the news for weeks. See CUNNINGHAM, page 7

Goodbye to a reader

It is only fitting that I should use this column to say so long to an avid Sun reader and a faithful subscriber of nearly thirty years. He dearly loved Virginia Beach, his fourth and favorite home. Two weeks ago he was my best man as I married. A week later, to the very hour, we buried him. I'm saying so long to my father.

Lest you think reader I misuse this space for personal goodbyes please read on. Here was a man who was as much a part of Virginia Beach as of his family. My family.

The people at City Hall knew Sam Martinette, through his tireless work on the Democratic City Committee and the Planning Commission. He was around in the early 60s when the larger City was formed and never tired of bragging about life at the Beach. I can remember his excitement at watching a new City emerge from the merger of the County and little Virginia Beach. He was there at the creation. The politicians on both sides knew the man.

Ed's notes

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

They knew him at the Princess Anne Ruritans and the Bayside Lions too. He was a ticket seller supreme, they say, and always ready with a joke or a story. It was fitting that the last two nights he was around, he spent with his pals.

They knew him at the State Capital also, where he served as a legislative aide to Billy O'Brien, spending his time in Richmond while the General Assembly met. He loved working the polls each election, and loved watching the way the state business worked.

Because he was a worker he kept going after closing down the family business he and his brother Charles ended up running. He served the Bank of Virginia Beach as a director of their Bayside Branch, and missed a SEAVAMP Board meeting the day he died. The man was busy every minute of the day.

Yet he found time to raise a family which has evolved through five grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

As all things must pass so did he finally, a happy and proud man, willing to work until the end. I say goodbye to him through the columns of The Virginia Beach Sun because he always thought it was the only real job I ever had. It was in Virginia Beach.

CLASP meeting

Films on family

The producers of "Focus on the Family" have an outstanding new series, One Is A Whole Number featuring Harold Ivan Smith's films entitled Divorce and Sexuality, which will be shown at 7:15 p.m. on November 16, at the Virginia Beach Community Chapel, 1261 Laskin Road. # Divaris condo nears finish

VIRGINIA BEACH—An intriguing 11-story high-rise under construction at the northwest edge of Virginia Beach's Lesner Bridge will be the most luxurious, expensive condominium project in Tidewater upon its completion.

Although the $10.5 million 3556-On-The-Bay will not be completed until early January, its developer Gerald S. Divaris of Divaris Real Estate says it is already attracting attention. "My office is continually fielding inquiries about these condominiums. But wait until 3556-On-The-Bay is finished. It'll really draw attention then, because there won't be a project around that can compare to it in design, luxuries and first-class amenities," he declared.

Unit prices will range from $193,000 to $485,000 with the average condominium commanding approximately $275,000. All units will have their own design and panoramic water views. Special amenities will include imported-marble entrance foyers, crystal chandeliers, Karastan carpeting, built-in safes, and solid wood doors with solid brass hardware. In addition, each unit will have a wrap-around balcony with a waterfront view of the Chesapeake Bay, the Lynnhaven River or both.

As a special bonus to 3556-On-The-Bay buyers, Divaris has arranged for them to take advantage of an interior design service at no additional cost. The service will be provided by Bamel Interiors of Virginia Beach.

Other 3556-On-The-Bay features include two covered parking spaces for each unit; direct access to Chesapeake Beach with a first-of-its-kind inclined seawall designed by Old Dominion marine biologist Dr. George Oriell; landscaped gardens; a security entrance; a multi-purpose facility with a kitchen and bar for parties, meetings and other activities; an exercise room and saunas with access to outdoor hot tub and swimming pool; a sun deck, in-door whirlpool and three fully furnished guest rooms with bathroom and kitchen for residents' guests.

There are 36 units planned for 3556-On-The-Bay, ranging in size from 1,300 to 3,400 square feet. Divaris noted, however, that several of his buyers are considering purchasing two adjoining condominiums and combining them into one large unit. Ten units have already been sold and 14 are reserved.

Buyers of the five penthouses will get their living area on the 10th floor and bedrooms on the 11th. The two levels will be connected by an interior stairway. A personal elevator can be installed as a special request.

Divaris explained that the kinds of buyers who are being attracted to 3556-On-The-Bay are successful professionals and business people, often empty-nesters

Luxury condominiums topped out

Gerald Divaris (left), president of Divaris Real Estate, enthusiastically describes the finer points of his new Virginia Beach luxury condominium project, 3556-On-The-Bay, with Virginia Beach Mayor Harold Heischouer. Divaris' firm and Atlantic Permanent Federal Savings and Loan, joint developers of the project, recently hosted the ceremony to celebrate the placing of the final concrete block to the 11-story, $10.5 million building. The project's 36 units, which range from 1,300 to 3,400 square feet, are priced from $193,000 to $485,000 with the average condominium costing about $275,000. 3556 is scheduled for completion in January 1985.

whose children have grown and left home, currently living in luxury houses much larger than they need or wish to maintain.

"Our buyers don't want to worry about landscaping or home maintenance," he said.

"However, they do want a home with all the luxuries they have grown to expect."

CBN Cable debuts children's program

VIRGINIA BEACH—CBN Cable Network's five-star lineup of Sunday morning children's shows will add a star of a different kind Nov. 18—singer/actress Debbie McLeod, who will be hostess for a new CBN creation, "Superbook Club." The hour-long program, beginning at 11 a.m. eastern, ties together a mix of music, kid talk, fun and games, some learning experience and the internationally acclaimed animated series, "Superbook."

Helping to live up the show, both in the animated series and in the live portion, will be a figure familiar to children in many parts of the world—a sawed off, winsome robot that answers to the name of "Gizmo."

A live "children-only" audience will be on hand to take part of the show's activities.

"Superbook Club" is scheduled in the middle of a series of animated programs as the highlight of the innovative midday block of young people's shows. It is preceded by "Davey and Goliath" at 10:30 a.m., and followed by "Honey, Honey," at noon and "Leo the Lion" at 12:30 p.m.

McLeod, whom CBN production officials term a "natural" for children's programming, is a veteran of television, film and musical theater. She played Lori Martin in the CBN continuing daytime drama, "Another Life," she was Marlene in "Search for Tomorrow," and Aunt Connie Wilson in "As the World Turns."

The "Superbook" series was created by CBN originally for use in Japan where its immense popularity resulted in audiences as large as five million persons in Tokyo alone. It has generated so much interest that today it is shown in Italy, Latin America, The Philippines, in Caribbean countries, South Africa, the Middle East and throughout the U.S. Mondays through Fridays at 7 a.m. on CBN Cable Network.

The two-and-a-half hour lineup is aimed at entertaining children in a time period that often has little to offer them in TV fare appropriate to their age, according to Thomas E. Rugeberg, CBN's senior vice president of administration and operations.

Hostess Debbie McLeod and Gizmo the robot tune up for the new CBN Children's Show, "Superbook Club," which debuts November 18 at 11 a.m. on the CBN Cable Network.

Fort Story soldier honored

FORT EUSTIS, Va. - a Decatur, Ill., man has been inducted into an elite organization for outstanding noncommissioned officers.

Sgt. Randall R. Perry, an aircraft structural repairer assigned to the 8th Transportation Company, 11th Transportation Battalion, at Fort Story, a sub-installation of the U.S. Army Transportation Center headquartered at Fort Eustis, was inducted into the Sergeant Morales Club by Maj. Gen. Aaron L. Lilley, U.S. Army Transportation Center commander.

Perry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.R. Perry Jr., of Decatur.

He was nominated and selected for his leadership as an assistant squad leader, team leader and squad leader while assigned to the 394th Transportation Battalion at Stuttgart, Germany. An illness in the family, however, brought him back to the United States before the official induction ceremony could be held, the sergeant said.

Perry credited his wife with his selection. "She helped me a lot," he said. "It took a lot of preparation for the board and she was helpful in that respect. She also took time to sew patches on for new soldiers in the unit."

The Sergeant Morales Club was created by a former U.S. Army Europe commander-in-chief, Gen. George B. Blanchard, now retired, to epitomize his ideal of a noncommissioned officer. Induction into the club is a testament to a soldier's leadership abilities.

"The club is designed to recognize NCO's with the qualities of leadership displayed by Sergeant Morales," Perry said. "Actually, there was no real Sergeant Morales. He is a fictional composite of the best attributes of a noncommissioned officer, based on Gen. Blanchard's squad leader when the general was an enlisted soldier," he explained.

Now an assistant squad leader with the 8th Transportation Company, Perry contends a noncommissioned officer's chief responsibility is to the lower enlisted soldiers in his unit.

"You have to know your soldiers and you have to take care of them," he said, "even if it means extra hours. They have to know they can come to you when they have problems and you will help them the best you can."

First Sgt. William S. Wendt, 8th Transportation Company's senior enlisted soldier, called Perry "an outstanding individual and outstanding noncommissioned officer in every way."

"He is a leader in all ways," the first sergeant said. "If you give him a job to do, he will take the ball and run. Everyone in the company has nothing but respect and admiration for Sgt. Perry."

Colonna said more volunteers are also needed, especially men. At present Meyer is the only male volunteer. She explained that volunteers are not assigned patients immediately after losing a patient because of the stress of the experience. A greater number of volunteers would make it possible to provide volunteers with a longer break between patients.

Colonna, whose college project really took off, said she is planning to attend the Hospice meeting in Hartford, Conn., to find out how other hospice organizations operate.

Patients in the program are those with less than six months to live. The hospice care is provided by an interdisciplinary team of physicians, nurses, social workers, pharmacists, psychological and spiritual coun-

Cabbage Odors, Preventing - If you are boiling cabbage, place a soup plate three-quarters filled with white vinegar on the stove, near the boiling cabbage, to absorb all the odor.

Cake, Keeping It Fresh - If cake is starting to get stale, put one-half of a freshly cut apple in the cake tin. It'll have it moist and fresh again within hours.

Cake, Keeping It Moist - One teaspoonful of glycerine added to each pound of flour will keep your cake moist. Or you can add the grated rind of a lemon or an orange.

By Chuck Faulkner

Cake Batter - Make sure that all ingredients, flour, butter, milk and eggs, are at room temperature. You'll get a much better cake with better texture.

Cake Flour, Substitution - Put two tablespoons of cornstarch in a measuring cup. Fill to the one cup measure with plain flour. Sift well and it's ready to use.

Cake Frosting - For an easy cake frosting, simply take one cup of powdered sugar and continue to add maple syrup until you achieve the desired consistency. To spread cake frosting evenly, dip your knife blade (silver, if possible) in hot water and away you go. As the knife gets cold, redip it from time to time.

Cakes, Sticking To Pan - Before adding the batter to the pan, sprinkle the pan with equal parts of confectioners' sugar and flour. Or, after baking, place the pan on an old beach towel that you've soaked in cold water then wrung out. After a few seconds, the cake will come out easily.

Candles - Any candle will burn twice as long if it is very cold. Put your candles in the freezer for two hours before lighting them. Or store them in the refrigerator overnight so they'll drip less as candles.

Candles, Too Large For The Holder - Dip the end (about three inches) of the candle in hot water until it becomes soft and pliable. Now, press it down into the holder.

Candle Wax On Carpet Or Rug, Removing - First, remove as much as possible with a blunt instrument, for example, the back of a knife, and combing the spot with an old comb. Now, lay two paper towels on the spot and press with a warm iron. If a slight stain remains, rub it with a soft cloth dampened with alcohol. This will help remove stains caused by colored wax.

Candle Wax on Furniture, Removing - Apply a piece of soft cloth in which you have wrapped two ice cubes. When the wax become hard, scratch it off with the back of a knife. Apply wax and polish. Note: Be sure to wipe up the ice water as it drips.

Candle Wax On Material, Removing - First, scrape off all excess wax. Next, put a paper towel under the wax spot, then lay another paper towel on top of the wax. With a fairly warm iron, press the paper towel for about two minutes. The heat melts the wax, which is absorbed by the two towels.

Candlesticks, Cleaning - Using a nail brush or other small brush, scrub them with soap milk. Then wash them in warm, sudsy water. Rinse in cold water, then polish. Clean brass candlesticks with a nail brush that has been dipped in a thin mixture of pure lemon juice and household salt. Then wash, rinse, and polish.

Professionally designed sets create special aura for ballet

Once again that old-time holiday favorite, "The Nutcracker," is coming to Tidewater, but this year there's an extra special aura about the show.

Tchaikovsky's ballet classic will be performed by the Old Dominion University Ballet Dec. 1-2 and Dec. 8-9 in front of new, original scenery and props.

The motif being used is a pine tree to depict the holiday spirit. The audience will be able to find that particular tree in each scene whether it stands among others along a street, is covered with snow in a forest or is ornately decorated in a living room.

This year, "The Nutcracker" will be performed at the Pavilion

Theater in Virginia Beach at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, and at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 2. Performances at Norfolk's Chrysler Hall will take place at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, and at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 9.

Tickets for the Pavilion performances are $11, $9, and $7 and are available at the Pavilion box office and all Tidewater First Virginia Bank branches. Tickets for the Chrysler Hall performances are $11, $9, $7, and $5. They are available at the Scope box office and all E-Z-Tiks locations.

For more information call the Pavilion box office at 428-8000 or the Scope box office at 441-2161.

Virginia Stage Company to present 'Husbandry'

Patrick Tovatt's award winning play Husbandry will be presented as the second play in Virginia Stage Company's six-play subscription series.

Husbandry is a play of family values set in a high ceilinged dining room of an old Kentucky farmhouse: an old venerable dining suite and sepia-toned photographs on the wall; a lived-in room that holds many memories. Dee and Les have lived on the farm for years, making a living from the land and raising a family. Harry, their son, and his wife Bev return to the Kentucky farm for a long overdue visit. Everything is exactly the same as they remember it; from the faded old floral wallpaper to the little crystal glasses in the cupboard.

With little coming in and costs increasing, the family is facing the reality of losing the farm. Harry, presented with the needs and arguments of his family must decide what is best for his wife, children, parents and finally for himself. Husbandry explores these conflicts and choices, providing a gentle yet riveting evening of theatre.

Patrick Tovatt, the Playwright, was the Producing Director at Virginia Stage Company during its first two seasons. He has long been associated with the famed Actor's Theatre of Louisville, as both an actor and director and has worked in many of America's finest regional theatres including Indiana Repertory Theatre, American Conservatory Theatre and Los Angeles Actors Theatre. Since its first production at ATL, Husbandry has been chosen for production by many of the major regional theatres, and will be produced in New York City at the Manhattan Theatre Club this winter.

Directing the play will be Jamie Brown. VSC audiences will remember him as the director for Season Five's A Christmas Carol, Artichoke, and The Dining Room. The cast of four includes Mary Fogarty as Dee, who has worked with Mr. Brown on Broadway in Of The Fields. Lately, Les, Dee's husband, will be played by Addison Powell, who won an Obie Award for his performance in The Iceman Cometh. Michael Hartman (son Harry) will be remembered by VSC audiences for his performance in Hot Hog during Season Two.

Husbandry will open on Friday, November 16 at 8 p.m. with Preview Performances on Wednesday, November 14 and Thursday, November 15 at 8 p.m. The show will continue through December 1, with shows Wednesday through Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. There will be one Tuesday Matinee on November 27 at 2 p.m. It should be noted that there will be no performance on Thanksgiving Day, November 22.

Ticket prices range from $8 to $15. Tickets are available by calling the VSC Box Office at 627-1234 and at all branches of the First Virginia Bank of Tidewater. Half-price tickets are available the day of the performance at the kiosk at Waterside in Norfolk.

Sun business feature

Former aviator joins the family business

His life has been a "sustained superior performance," to borrow a Navy phrase.

He graduated sixth in a class of 208 at Indian River High School in 1970. He graduated with merit from the Naval Academy.

But that was just the beginning for Van Rose, who went on to become a naval aviator who won medals for saving Vietnamese boat people and for participating in patrol operations during the Iranian hostage crisis. He later became a Naval Academy instructor, then flag secretary, for which he won the Meritorious Service Medal while at the academy. He put himself through the Masters program at Central Michigan University, earning a Masters degree in business administration, specializing in financial management.

Rose recently joined the staff of Rose & Krueh Realty Corporation in Virginia Beach. Having always been close to the president of Rose & Krueh, his father, Jim Rose, Van knew beforehand that real estate is hard work — with grueling hours required to be successful.

But his father's example has proven to be a good one before — the senior Rose retired from the Navy in 1966.

Van Rose has always been an independent, reliable, creative person. In high school when students cast their "superlative" votes, he was voted "most dependable." He prides himself on that distinction, and believes it to be a key ingredient in his personality.

"I wouldn't be in real estate if it hadn't been for the opportunities that I believe it offers me," Rose said. "I had a successful Navy career going.

Because of my particular interests and talents, and my natural tendency to hard work, I found the Navy an exciting and rewarding profession. I thoroughly enjoyed what I was doing. Being placed in responsible positions where people depend on me excites me."

He values that Navy experience. "With the jobs that I held — such as patrol plane mission commander, squadron legal officer for 400 people, instructor at the Naval Academy, and flag secretary to two admirals, I learned how to communicate with all types of people and work through many people's problem."

In real estate, every day he meets people from all walks of life, and enjoys helping others work through tough financial situations and other aspects of buying or selling homes.

"I guess what draws me and excites me most about real estate is the fact that the possibilities are unlimited. You do not have to wait for promotion boards and time in service to move up the ladder or to move to jobs of greater responsibilities. I am convinced that by combining intelligence, uncompromising integrity, empathy and dogged determination, there is no limit to the success and enjoyment I can draw from real estate."

Rose hasn't completely cut all ties with the Navy. He is a member of the Naval Reserves. He is also the Blue and Gold officer in Tidewater for the Naval Academy. He interviews high school students interested in attending the academy, educates them about what to expect at the academy, and helps them write letters to their congressmen requesting appointments. He also makes recommendations to the academy about the students' qualifications.

Joyner promoted to architectural department head

VIRGINIA BEACH - Forrest Coile Associates, P.C. recently announced the promotion of A. Bruce Joyner to architectural department head of the Virginia Beach office and his election as Associate by the Board of Directors. Joyner joined the firm in November of 1981 and recently assumed the responsibilities of scheduling, programming and management of all architectural project designs by staff architects.

Area represented at national relocation meeting

VIRGINIA BEACH - June Wiltse, relocation services director, and Betty Holland, Corporate Counselor, of Goodman Segar Hogan Residential Sales Corporation recently joined other leaders in the corporate relocation industry at a national meeting called "Super Session 1984" is the only national meeting, open to all industry leaders, which focuses entirely on the real estate aspects of employee relocation.

During three full days packed with 100 separate seminars, Wiltse and Holland exchanged ideas on new developments in the business with people from across the continent. They represented leading real estate companies that specialize in working with transferees, as well as large corporations, relocation-management companies and professionals in related fields.

Speaking from the corporate perspective were relocation managers from such well-known companies as Burger King, General Electric, Motorola, Diamond Shamrock, Intel, Baxter Travenol Labs and the Atlantic National Bank of Florida.

Now in its third year, "Super Session" again received strong support from the national relocation-management companies that contract with corporations to handle the purchase and resale of transferees' homes. Leading various sessions were senior officers and front-line companies owned by Merrill Lynch, Equitable Life, Coldwell Banker, Chemical Bank, Bank of St. Louis and Maenner.

Major addresses by top executives of the two new national real estate companies, Merrill Lynch Realty Associates in Stamford, Conn. and the Coldwell Banker Residential Group headquartered in Newport Beach, Calif. offered a good example of "The Challenge of Change," the meeting's theme. In addition, economist Richard Scott-Ram, a vice president of Chemical Bank of New York, assessed the probability of economic change.

The meeting's "Lunch with Leaders" encouraged each of the participants to meet and talk with the people who influence their business. It was typical of an entire program that featured opportunities for informal exchange throughout.

Bay Savings promotes Rook

Bay Savings Bank recently announced the promotion of Marilyn K. Rook to Regional Mortgage Manager for the Great Neck office in Virginia Beach. She has been with Bay Savings Bank for two years, and prior to her present position she was branch manager of the Fairfield office in Virginia Beach. Rook is well known in the lending industry, having worked in different phases of this profession for the past twenty years.

Marilyn Rook was previously employed by Lassiter & Associates, Inc. as vice president for four years, with Cameron-Brown Company as assistant vice president for 11 years and with Colonial Group, Inc. as assistant secretary for nine years.

The Virginia Division of Tourism has been recognized for outstanding achievement in travel marketing during 1984. The Citation of Merit was presented to the division by the Travel Industry Association of America at its annual meeting recently in Dallas.

The award was given specifically for the Virginia Division of Tourism's 1984, 16-page "Virginia Vacation" Sunday newspaper insert, distributed to more than two million prospective travelers in five major markets — New York, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Lancaster, Pittsburgh and the Washington, D.C.-Baltimore area. The free-standing insert presented editorial copy and photographs illustrating the state's new tourism theme-line, "These Are Exciting Times in Virginia." A cooperative public/private effort, it also included advertising from 54 Virginia cities, regions, attractions and accommodations.

The Virginia Division of

Tourism tracks the effectiveness of all advertising, including the cooperative newspaper insert program, to determine the percent of advertising inquiries who subsequently vacation in Virginia within six months of their inquiry. The latest conversion study on the insert, conducted in fall 1981, showed that 60 percent of the advertising respondents to the newspaper insert subsequently vacationed in Virginia. This was the third year since 1981 that the Virginia Division of Tourism has sponsored a zip code-targeted

Sunday newspaper insert.

The Travel Industry Association of America, the national trade organization or more than 1,500 travel industry members, annually recognizes the important role that travel marketing plays in the promotion of travel to and within the United States. Three states were selected this year by the judges. In Virginia, travel is a $3.7 billion industry, directly supporting nearly 85,000 jobs.

New tax saving service offered by HBI

Employers may now determine with a two-minute phone call whether they are eligible to save potentially thousands of dollars through a little-known federal tax law. The immediate response information is available through a new service of the Home Builders Institute (HBI), the educational arm of the National Association of Home Builders.

In announcing the new service recently, HBI President Philip Polivchak stressed that many employers throughout the United States are hiring people from targeted population groups, and are therefore qualified to benefit from the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit (TJTC) program. He pointed out that most employers either do not know about the program and how much money they could be saving, or they do not know how to determine if their employees are eligible.

"We have established a computer assisted operation which enables employers to call us, answer a few basic questions, and within a couple of minutes, know whether their new employees may qualify them for these substantial tax savings," Polivchak explained. "If the answer is yes, then we begin the paperwork necessary to get these credits for the employers."

The Targeted Jobs Tax Credit Program is a federal tax law designed to encourage employers to hire people with special employment needs. Under the law, employers may earn tax credits — not deductions — of up to $4,500 over a two-year period for each employee hired who meets the eligibility requirements. These credits can also be carried forward as far as fifteen years or backwards three years.

Enacted in 1978, TJTC is in effect through December 31, 1985. Although the law has existed for approximately six years, many employers have apparently never taken advantage of it. The Home Builders Institute's new service provides a quick and trouble-free way for employers to determine whether their new hires qualify under TJTC.

Once eligibility is confirmed, HBI works with an employer in processing all the necessary documents to assure certification and in preparing the tax forms. HBI charges only a small fee that is based solely on the tax credit received. The program is intended as a cost-effective, time-saving service that saves employers thousands of dollars with little effort on their part.

Interest on mortgages needs to be recorded

When income tax time arrives, both lender and borrower need to know how much of every monthly mortgage payment went for interest on a loan, and how much to reduce the principal owed.

Real Estate
By Roger Pyle

As a homeowner, you can deduct, when making out your tax return, not only all property taxes paid, but also all mortgage interest.

At the end of the year, your lending institution sends a statement telling you how much interest you paid. (The remainder of your monthly payments went to pay off part of the loan and is not deductible.)

When you borrow on a private mortgage, with payments going, for example, to the previous owner of the house, you are entitled to claim interest payments as a tax deduction, in the same way. But you probably don't receive any year-end statement. So you need some way to keep track, and so does the person to whom you are sending the payments.

VHDA offers $40 million to apartment developers

The Virginia Housing Development Authority (VHDA) announced today that it is seeking mortgage loan applications from apartment developers interested in borrowing the proceeds from $40 million in multi-family housing bonds that the VHDA expects to sell in February or March.

VHDA officials estimate these funds will finance the construction of 1,300 rental apartment units for qualified low and moderate income Virginians.

The VHDA's Multi-Family Housing Development Division will accept mortgage loan applications for its low-interest financing through December 31st.

Information about this program may be obtained by telephoning the division at 804-782-1986, extension 219.

Approximately 23,000 rental apartment units in 175 developments throughout the Commonwealth have been financed previously by the VHDA.

The VHDA is a political subdivision of the Commonwealth which was established in 1972 by the General Assembly to encourage the investment of private capital for the purpose of providing mortgage financing for the construction and rehabilitation of residential housing for low and moderate income Virginians.

Manager expected to complete reorganization

who resigned for another position, has not been filled; Dodd has been moved to the new position and two other assistants are Michael Barrett and David Grochmal. These two posts will be continued at least through the current budget year, Muehlenbeck said. Another assistant to the city manager post, in community development, has been changed to a department head.

It is expected at least one and possibly more of the top positions may be filled by persons who are not presently with the city.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf first questioned the manager on the reorganization ordinances which had been placed on the consent agenda where items not expected to elicit controversy are placed.

She said she would like to see the job descriptions of the individuals. Muehlenbeck said that certain goals and standards will be set for the administrators. He said that the reorganization is the "beginning of establishing high standards."

Councilwoman Nancy Creech pointed out that the city manager has a budget, controlled by Council, and that she assumed the results will show the success of the reorganization.

Oberndorf said that the ordinances "took me by surprise." She said she knew the Council had appropriated the money and approved the action last week setting up a kind of line of authority, but that when the item showed up on the agenda, for this week, the meeting was the only opportunity she had for asking questions.

Councilman John A. Baum also pointed out that the city manager is held accountable. "In order to get people with managerial skills," he said, "you have to pay for them."

The city manager's salary is $83,000. Mayor Harold Heischberger said that when Council addressed the budget the city manager's actions would be assessed. He recommended giving the manager the attitude "to accomplish things." This doesn't turn him completely loose, he said.

The ordinances, to remove the positions from the pay scale and to appropriate $150,000 for the reorganization, were approved by a vote of 10-0. Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. was absent.

In answer to further questions from Councilman Robert G. Jones, Muehlenbeck said he would not bring the salary proposals to Council for approval and that they will be set solely on the basis of merit.

Jones said he felt uneasy about establishing $200,000 worth of new positions at the top of the hierarchy.

Creech said that Council already has approved the reorganization and the new ordinance merely takes the positions out of the pay plan.

Oberndorf said that she was asking questions only so that she would not "sit there in ignorance" at budget time. She said she respected Muehlenbeck's desire to reorganize the structure and never interfere with his committee to screen applicants. She said that Council has no other forums to ask these questions.

Cunningham story is told

until the Bendix board fired her in 1980. The couple married in June, 1982 and made the headlines two months later again as a Bendix-Martin Marietta corporate struggle escalated. Agee's bride was reported to be his chief advisor. The final results showed Allied Corporation taking over Bendix, a fate avoided by Martin Marietta.

Powerplay reveals that Cunningham's lack of common sense was largely responsible for her corporate misadventure. For a supposedly brilliant businesswoman, she displayed no PR savvy as her relationship with Agee continued to make headlines. If they were victims of the media, they allowed themselves to be. Her need to lambast anyone who disapproved of the Cunningham-Agee romance, whether ex-spouse or business enemy, amounts to downright whining; it is certainly unprofessional by any standard.

Throughout this memoir, Cunningham describes her family, her faith and the evolution of her romance with Agee. While embarrassing, it does reassure the reader that a lot more than anti-feminism was responsible for her much publicized plummet.

Powerplay is an entertaining read because it negates much of what the general public already knows of Mary Cunningham. True, the autobiography reduces sympathy for the writer and makes one question the actual abilities of the respected Agee. But it also proves the old adage, "actions have consequences."

Krummell elected

After the vote for Krummell, no vote was taken on Williams.

Krummell is a partner in the architectural firm of Krummell and Jackson of Virginia Beach. Jennings pointed out that 85 percent of Krummell's work involves government contracts and the most of the balance is commercial with little or no residential.

Krummell, a graduate of VPI and Hampden Sydney, is married, has three children and resides in Kings Grant. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, served on a Rose Hall special citizens committee and worked with Jennings on establishing the beach at Camp Pendleton as a public beach. Jennings said he nominated Krummell because he is an honorable man and "is his own man."

Other appointments included: • Arts and Humanities Commission—Dolores E. Kelly, to fill the unexpired term of Henry Clark which expires June 30, 1986 and Ernestine Middleton, to fill the unexpired term of Edwin C. Kellam, which expires June 30, 1986.

• Industrial Development Authority—R. Dean Lee, former Planning Commission chairman, to fill the unexpired term of Harry Sandler, which term expires August 31, 1986.

No other nominations were placed on the floor and all were elected by votes of 11-0.

Which brings us back to Mr. Byers. He has called for a tougher violations code, including curtailment of scholarships, dismissals of coaching staffs and suspensions of team schedules for one year or more for schools found guilty of serious infractions.

The NCAA has resisted these tougher standards because it believes the member schools can police their own ranks. But the record suggests otherwise. During the last three years, 39 schools have been placed on NCAA probation for rules infractions. Even so, insiders insist that as many as 70 Division I-A athletic programs should be placed on probation each year for chronic violations.

The NCAA alone has the overall authority to clean up intercollegiate athletics; but reform will not arrive if there is a compromise with cheating and commercialization.

Council nears vote on plan and improvement budget

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter
VIRGINIA BEACH—December 17 has been set as the target date for the approval by Virginia Beach City Council of both the new Comprehensive Plan and the new Capital Improvement Budget for the next five years.

The first will guide development in the city for the next five to ten years, but will actually affect the city's growth over a longer period of time. The second lists the capital projects which will be financed over the next five years to provide services.

The major controversy has been in connection with the establishment of the "green line," which would restrict development to the northern part of the city and leave the southern part mostly agricultural.

However, some of the land area south of the line is already zoned for residential construction (approximately 4,000 acres). Council has been considering possibly downzoning this property to conform to the plan.

Henley calls for policy change on development $

By Lee Cahill
Virginia Beach Councilwoman Barbara Henley has called for an evaluation of Council policy concerning the use of Community Development funds.

She said that the funds should be used for rehabilitation of the target areas rather than for sewer and water projects which in any other neighborhood would be financed with general obligation bonds.

Remarkable, just remarkable!

Could well be what Mayor Harold Heischober is thinking as he gazes up at Sculptor Arline Shulman's piece, recently unveiled at the new Corporate Center IV office building, located just east of Pembroke

Mall. The metal sculpture was unveiled last week during a champagne reception.

Corporate Center IV office building opens in Virginia Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH—The unveiling of an original sculpture recently in the front courtyard of Corporate Center IV will mark the official opening of Virginia Beach's newest office building.

The five-story office complex, fourth in a group of five located just east of Pembroke Mall, is a project of Rowe Development Company, developer and builder of office buildings in Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, North Carolina and West Virginia.

Designed by the architectural firm of Morrisette, Cederquist and Bondurant and Associates, the 77,000 square foot building features plant-filled lobbies, high-grade lighting, solid oak doors, high quality carpeting, abundant parking facilities, and according to Rowe Development President Kemp Rowe, something innovative for Virginia office buildings.

"We've pioneered something at the Corporate Center project of which I am extremely proud. I am speaking of the original lobby art which adorns the walls of the building. In addition, we commissioned New York sculptor Arline Shulman to produce a dynamic modern metal sculpture for the building's front courtyard."

Rowe feels that today's businessperson seeks something unique, something more than a few walls and some desks. The physical office environment has become an important factor in choosing office space and special design features make Corporate Center IV stand out. The tallest of the five Corporate Center buildings, Corporate Center IV is positioned visually as the center of the five-building complex and is designed as a focal point of the group.

The interior design division of Morrisette, Cederquist and Bondurant handled the interior design of Corporate Center IV and arranged for all lobby art and the sculpture. Working with a color scheme of pearl grays foiled with a varied range of mauve to maroon, the designers used the same palette of colors in lobbies and service spaces. The initial lobby space is two stories featuring a linear aluminum ceiling in a dark metallic grey color. Special design features include charcoal slate floors in lobbies, international style leather-

Thanksgiving

Most Virginians, be they native born or adopted, know that there were two events claiming the title of "The First Thanksgiving."

There was the one in Massachusetts which was propagated and popularized by American History texts and their "Yankee" authors. This Thanksgiving took place in 1621, and commemorated the Plymouth Colonists' first full harvest.

The real First Thanksgiving celebration took place in 1619—a year before the Pilgrims set sail for the New World—at Berkeley Plantation.

We suspect it was this event that native son George Washington had in mind when he proclaimed our first national Thanksgiving Day on Nov. 26, 1789.

The custom apparently fell out of favor to a degree, but was revived in 1863 by President Lincoln.

Since this was during the War Between the States, we suspect that it was at this point that the Pilgrim Lobby eradicated mention of the earlier dinner party at Berkeley Plantation.

We now celebrate Thanksgiving on the fourth Thursday of November, thanks to an arrangement worked out by Congress in 1941, thereby legislating one of our first "long weekends," or "Federal Holidays," for those with less liberal employment contracts.

Since this setup specifically honors neither the Virginia, nor the Massachusetts event, it leaves the choice up to you.

Since the Pilgrims were a dour, straight-laced lot, we suspect our own Thanksgiving dinner will more closely resemble that of the Berkeley Plantation, although the furnishings and tableware certainly won't be up to those standards.

As usual, there will be some things in our personal lives or the world in general about which we won't feel thankful.

The Agriculture Department, for instance, tells us that one serving of turkey with stuffing, potatoes, gravy, vegetables and other side dishes will cost $8.35 to prepare, up from $7.70 a serving last year. (And that doesn't count a nut cup or slice of pumpkin pie, either.)

And the news from Central America, Ethiopia and India won't be very cheerful, to be sure.

But our own country seems to be on an emotional "high" right now. The economy is stable, if not prosperous. And we Americans are feeling good about who we are, once again.

So if we search hard enough, there will be plenty for which to be thankful.

And that's really what the day is all about, isn't it?—C.K.G.

Salute to the Knights

Last Friday evening the Kellam High School football knights took the field at Princess Anne High School to do battle with the Hampton Crabbers for the Eastern Region Championship. The Knights, representing the Beach District, were 8-2, Hampton 9-1, with five consecutive shutouts.

It was not to be Kellam's night. Sports fans know the story by now. Hampton took the early initiative, expanding a 23-0 halftime lead to a 37-0 victory. We all know it's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game. That may be small consolation to the Kellam footballers, but it is true.

Winning the Beach District title is no small feat, and for that we congratulate the Kellam Knights and their coach Harper Donahue.—S.M.

Letters To The Editor

"politicans...so much with so little"

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Never before in the history of Municipal Government have so many politicians attempted to do so much with so little. To hear them talk you would believe that the budget surplus of the city of Virginia Beach was an inexhaustible supply of funds to painlessly solve every sticky problem that arises.

As part of the City Council election campaign it was proposed, by one politician, that the surplus be used to fund the Lake Gaston pipeline. After the elections, the surplus was to be used to help solve the urgent need for long overdue road repairs. Even a list of road projects was prepared. Now the budget surplus will be used to fund the, also long overdue, new school construction. You can be sure to hear shortly that it will be used to fund the Atlantic Avenue Beautification, dredging the Lynnhaven and the Beach Erosion Projects. Somehow, you hear of its being used to reduce taxes, which would be only proper, if the city is taking in more than it needs.

In the same vein you keep hearing of the miracles in road construction which would be possible if we got our fair share of State Road Funds. Estimates indicate the increase would be barely enough to widen Baxter Road.

The honest truth is that the entire surplus and the additional State funds are only drops in the bucket compared to the billion dollars needed for construction by the city over the next few years. Why can't the city fathers face up to the fact that the interest and capital payments on the money borrowed through the sale of bonds, already sold and projected this year, will wipe out the budget surplus—and, in addition, require hefty raises in property taxes plus prohibitively high water rates?

The time has come to pay the piper for our uncontrolled growth and the taxpayers should no longer be misled by false promises and unrealistic proposals.

Concerned with Uranium mining

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Because there is no proven sure way to mine uranium and dispose of its millions of tons of radioactive waste without contaminating water and people, Virginians all over the state are becoming more and more concerned about the possibility of uranium mining in Virginia becoming a reality.

If voted into law by the 1985 General Assembly, uranium mining would likely begin in the community of Sheva located in Pittsylvania County. There in Sheva during the life of the mine, 15 million tons of mill tailings would be produced and piled up into a mound, to remain as radioactive waste, dangerous to humans and animals for 264,000 years. It is strongly suspected that two additional sites in Pittsylvania County would be mined for uranium also. Add to this the 17,000 acres of land which have been under lease in the Virginia counties of Orange, Culpeper, Madison and Fauquier, and you will realize what a sizeable bite would be taken out of our state by the uranium industry.

If our legislators allow uranium mining to proceed, they will in effect be bequeathing a deadly heritage of radioactivity to our children and their descendants for several hundred thousands years. Those who can afford to move away from the mining areas will do so; the less fortunate will have to stay and cope with contaminated water, poisoned air, and degraded soil. The unfortunate will witness the migration of clean industry away from their area, and see it shunned by productive economic development. They will have to watch as their families and neighbors sicken and die from the increased levels of radioactivity which would be present in their environment.

Although the average uranium mine is in operation for only thirteen years, Daniel C. Idzal, Marine president, claims a "100-year future" for mining the ore deposits under lease to his company. Don't let it happen! Contact your elected representatives and tell them you want a better future for Virginia than 100 years of uranium mining would bring. Tell them "no!" to uranium mining in Virginia.

The goose who came to Thanksgiving dinner

The other day a couple of us were sitting around talking about Thanksgiving dinner and the various customs prevalent in different sections of the country and one of the boys said something about his family having goose for dinner rather than turkey.

"Good grief!" I said. "We eat no goose around our house!" Aside from their relation to the ducks lounging around the family's back yard, who my mother protects and feeds like her very own, there was the question of Huey P. Long, and the memory of the Thanksgiving he came to dinner.

It was back in the mid-sixties, and the custom of the family was to feed anyone connected through blood or friendship. I was always bringing my friends around the house for Sunday spaghetti, and Thanksgiving was all the more reason to bring friends whose family were miles away.

Ed's notes By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

So among the assorted aunts, uncles, sisters, cousins and nieces who were coming that day was my friend Oley Konin, who brought a surprise along, and that surprise turned out to be a goose soon to be named Huey P. Long after the Louisiana politician.

Huey was a great, fat grey gander with a long white neck. He had been left in a pool at the old Golden Fridge Hotel as a prank and was rescued by a motel maid who raised him in her back yard. Huey had gotten to the edible stage when my friend Oley rescued him from a future laden with dressing and gravy. Oley brought Huey out to live with the ducks of Lake Joyce.

It would be easy, we thought, to get Huey to move in with his feathered relatives, who massed in the yard by the hundreds. So we gathered some bread and walked out to the edge of the lake. Huey waddling along, a most friendly sort of fowl.

The ducks were a bit taken aback at Huey's size, but basic hunger soon overcame their shyness and they eddied around us, bills popping and snapping as the rain of bread landed among them. Huey stood in the center, towering above the drakes and mallards, looking them over. After a moment he gave a shrug of disdain and flip-flopped his way over to us. Taking a stance similar to ours he turned and watched the ducks as if they were so many foolish birds scrambling for bread, which of course they were.

Just not used to ducks, we mused. Probably take him a little time to adjust, we said, then went in for Thanksgiving dinner.

Have you ever eaten a meal with a goose staring at you through a window?

It can be very unsettling to have one big bird while another gives you the eye. Huey stood at the kitchen door watching us get things ready, patient and loyal, our new pal. Several more times that day we tried to lure Huey down to join the ducks, but he was having none of it. Huey had decided he liked human beings more than ducks.

That was the beginning of a long stay for Huey. He became friends with Luke, the family dog, in fact became quite a part of the whole menagerie of ducks, dogs, cats, rabbits and wounded birds who passed through the Martinette household. But like all youngsters Huey finally left. When mating season rolled around Huey took off for another part of the lake, though not so far away that we couldn't visit from time to time.

And that's when evidence in the form of several great, round eggs showed us that the goose who came to dinner was really Mrs. Huey P. Long!

Art from Manhattan's East Village

The Virginia Beach Arts Center is bringing more than 50 paintings, sculptural constructions and photographs from today's most dynamic art scene to the Greater Hampton Roads area for an exhibition entitled, "East Village Excerpts."

The show opens (Friday), November 23 with a lecture-panel discussion featuring East Village artists and dealers at 6 p.m., followed by a preview reception from 7 to 9 p.m. These events are free and open to the public. "East Village Excerpts" highlights works on the cutting edge of the current art scene. All of the art in the exhibition has been created and shown in the East Village neighborhood in lower Manhattan, a community that has received much attention in recent months for both the sociological and artistic phenomenon that it represents.

Like Greenwich Village and the SoHo District that came before it, the once-delinquent East Village is becoming rapidly gentrified, largely due to the profusion of artists who have moved there in recent years, and the growing number of galleries that have sprouted in the last 2½ years to display their adventurous art.

"East Village Excerpts" is divided into two sections. One portion highlights recent paintings by Kim Keever, formerly a Norfolk resident who moved to the East Village in 1977. With participation in as many as 60 one-person and group exhibitions in the last year alone, Keever is now among the best known and most exhibited of the East Village artists.

The second section of "East Village Excerpts" highlights a tendency in the recent art of this neighborhood to pay homage to past art. Subtitled "The Making of Art History," this portion of the show features works by 11 East Village artists in a variety of media.

The artists represented are Michael Abrams, Mike Bidlo, Nancy Brooks Brody, Rusty Buckingham, Phyllis Galembo, Dennis Harper, Leslie Lew, Peter Nagy, Carolyn Louise Newhouse, Philip Pocock and David Dandlin.

The Virginia Beach Arts Center considers it a privilege to present the art of today—fresh from the studios of emerging artists—to the increasingly sophisticated art audiences of Greater Hampton Roads. In that way, the citizens of this community can also contribute to "The Making of Art History!"

"East Village Excerpts" will be on view through December 15. The Virginia Beach Arts Center is located at 1711 Arctic Avenue, three blocks from the oceanfront. Admission is free. Hours for the Arts Center galleries are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Have a laugh on yourself

It's a rare person who can laugh at himself and an even rarer one who can express his follies, foibles and pratfalls in writing so we can laugh with him. Mary Z. Gray, former political speechwriter and Washington Post columnist has recounted many of her mishaps in Ah, Bewilderness, a paean to the average person's struggles with the baffling conditions of modern life.

Perplexing experiences abound including an encounter with an opinionated house painter whose fondness for "peachy" white leads to pumpkin colored bedroom, a struggle with an enthusiastic travel agent who does delight. Among her more devious adversaries are electric blankets that refuse to heat, caulking guns that caulk everything but the cracks and plastic packages of lemon juice that resist being opened but when, after a frustrating battle are finally dropped unopened into a glass of ice tea, stubbornly refuse to dissolve.

Her experiences hit close to home just often enough to bring on in the readers the "Aha!" response - a feeling of relief that others also have a few difficulties in coping with all the ins and outs of modern life.

22nd Annual

Christmas in the country

VIRGINIA BEACH—The 22nd Annual Christmas in the Country sponsored by the Cape Henry Woman's Club will feature the home of April and Harry Miller.

Located at 1827 Duke of Norfolk Quay in the Chelmsford section of Virginia Beach off Great Neck Road, this impressive house was designed and built by Harry Miller. He used the original cypress columns and portico over Sugar Hill Plantation in Chesapeake on the outside of the structure. The interior is reminiscent of a southern plantation house of the 1800's. Each of the rooms contain several unusual antiques.

Tours of the home will be conducted by club members on Sunday, December 2 from 1 to 7 p.m. and on Monday, December 3 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cider and cookies will be served. In addition, there will be a country store selling hand crafted items and baked goods. A drawing for a "Cathedral Window" quilt made by club members will also be held on December 3. All proceeds will benefit the Cape Henry Woman's Club Scholarship Fund. Tickets may be purchased from club members or at the door.

This local production received excellent reviews including raves for original expressions in costuming and directing. The production's comic timing proves that Shakespeare is indeed fun to enjoy.

Transportation keeps Beach Rabbitts hopping

By Joan Coates
NORFOLK—The Rabbitt family gathered in front of the ODU Public Safety Building recently to have their picture taken.

All except Mom, that is. She's the only member of the Virginia Beach family who doesn't face the 25-minute drive to ODU each day.

When they get together during the day like this, the conversation invariably turns to schedules.

Who has a late class? Who has the card? Who needs a ride home?

"We make up a schedule each week," explained 19-year-old Margaret Rabbitt. "But practically every night we have to reorganize."

For the Rabbitts, it's not finances, competition for grades or personality conflicts that create problems when all four children in the family attend the same college at the same time.

It's transportation. Cars break down. Accidents happen. And one or the other is usually thrown off schedule by something as typical as a teacher holding class late.

For the group's red-haired father, who has worked at ODU for 13 years as a campus security officer, it's a constant shuffle of arrangements, rides and mechanical repairs.

"They're all living at home and they try to come in together," said the Bronx native. "The boys share a car with me and the wife, and the girls have a girlfriend they drive in with. I'm all the time getting calls that they've broken down somewhere."

But despite the hectic pace of life with four college students, John Rabbitt likes having his offspring nearby during the day. Although the five don't normally make plans to meet while on campus, they sometimes bump into each other in Webb Center or pass on the road.

"There's definitely more plusses than minuses" having your father work on campus, said

John (the junior).

"People look at you kind of funny when you say, 'Hi, Dad,' and he's a police officer," added Patricia. But to Margaret, it all boils down to transportation again.

"I like getting a ride," she said.

"They're the kind of kids everyone wishes they had," noted Ellen Lucas, crime prevention officer for public safety.

"They're good boys and girls," John Rabbitt echoed with obvious pride. "I don't have any problems with them."

Just transportation.

Ten foot pilgrim to preside over Omni Thanksgiving

The Omni International Hotel in Norfolk will again celebrate the Thanksgiving holiday with a bountiful buffet, but this year there will be an unusual twist to the traditional event.

The hotel's executive pastry chef David Robins began sculpting his creation in the hotel lobby on Thursday, November 15. He estimates it will take three days to complete his work of art. Crucial materials will include a chicken wire and styrofoam frame. Chocolate and marzipan will give the 600 lb. Pilgrim recognizable features.

Przybyla notes that the Omni staff always takes a creative, festive approach to celebrating a holiday. "We want our guests to enjoy all the traditional elements of Thanksgiving, like turkey and pumpkin pie, but we want to delight them too with something that will help them capture the holiday spirit," he says.

Przybyla says that his staff will construct a candy Pilgrim for several reasons. "After all, what symbol represents this holiday better than a Pilgrim? And our candy sculpture will be a study in creativity and authenticity," he remarks.

"Actually our chefs are becoming quite renowned as candy sculptors. Last Easter, our executive chef Michael Sigler and Chef Robins created a 20 foot chocolate bunny."

Przybyla points out that the Thanksgiving buffet will once again be set up in the hotel lobby with seating provided in the lobby

by bar, the Riverwalk Cafe and the Esplanade.

Diners will be able to enjoy such fare as roast turkey, ham, roast beef, soups, salads, truffle cakes, pecan diamonds, mousses and complimentary hot cider. Those guests who arrive before noon will also be able to sample breakfast items like eggs benedict, blintzes and sausage and bacon. Cost will be $13.95 per person. Reservations should be made by calling the Riverwalk Cafe at 622-2868.

Tickets on sale for 'Around the World with Sesame Street Live!'

How do you get from here to there? By car? By boat? By train? For expert travel advice, ask Muppet game show host Guy Smiley, currently moonlighting as a world tour guide for some very special celebrities -- Big Bird, Cookie Monster, and the rest of the Sesame Street Live gang. The boisterous quiz master escorts the Muppet entourage on a whimsical journey to lands near and far in the all-new theatrical production, "Around the World with Sesame Street Live" appearing at the Norfolk Scope from Wednesday, December 12th through Sunday, December 16th for 7 fun-filled shows.

Magically transported by car, boat and train, the Sesame Street Live Muppets present their unique perspective on the sights and sounds of such exotic lands as China, Mexico, France and Italy song, dance and laughter. Cookie Monster, for example, sets out to find one special souvenir -- a cookie -- from every country. And the colorful, bouncy Honkers salute London with a boogie around Big Ben in the production number, "Honk Around the Clock."

Masquerading at times as a Mexican seniorita, a Parisian Vamp and a Transylvanian gypsy, Prairie Dawn pops up unexpectedly throughout the 90-minute stage show to lead the entire cast in song and dance.

After stops in Transylvania and Switzerland, the would-be jet setters, overcome with homesickness, make a beeline for 123 Sesame Street.

Produced by Bob Shipstad and presented by VEE Corporation in cooperation with children's Television Workshop, this is the fourth edition of Sesame Street Live which was launched in 1980.

"It's a marvelous introduction to theater for children -- or for kids of all ages," says Shipstad. "If you like kids, as I do, just watching their reactions to the show makes all the work worth it."

Since its premiere performance in 1980, more than four million people have enjoyed Sesame Street Live.

Opening Night is being sponsored by WVEC TV-13. All tickets to this performance are half-price, no coupon necessary. Tickets are available at the Scope box office, Mothers Records & Tapes at Military Mall, Pembroke Mall, Lynnhaven Mall, Coliseum Mall-Hampton, Tracks at Wards Corner, Record Bar in tower Mall, N.O.B. Special Services, N.A.B. Special Services-Little Creek. To charge tickets call Chagat at 441-2161 or 1-800-468-3540. Discounts are available for groups of 20 or more by calling 627-7200.

Let air out of tires to get better traction in sand

Cane Furniture, Cleaning - Dust it well first, then scrub it with warm, salty water to which one-half a cup of pure lemon juice has been added. Dry thoroughly, then leave out in the sunshine.

Car, Stuck In Sand Or Loose Gravel - To get the needed traction, let the four tires down about one-third of the way. The extra width should allow your car to move much better.

The Hint Man

By Chuck Faulkner

Car Care - At least once a week, run your car at high speed (55 mph) for about five minutes, regardless of what speed you normally drive. This prevents carbon buildup in your engine, and later, costly repairs. If your windshield wipers are leaving marks on the glass because of oil or grease residue, clean them by wiping the rubber section with a cloth soaked in white vinegar and sprinkled with baking soda. To keep your water pump properly lubricated, add one ounce of brake fluid to your radiator twice a year.

Car Doors, Chipped - If the edges of your car doors are chipped from banging other cars, poles, and trees, clean as much of the rust off the edges as possible using steel wool dipped in kerosene. After it's dry, paint the edges of the car door with clear nail polish. Two or three coats applied with a cotton swab will work wonders.

Car Radiator, Cleaning - If the radiator is badly rusted, dissolve one cup of sal soda in one gallon of warm water and put it in the radiator. Run the engine for fifteen minutes. Then drain and rinse thoroughly two or three times.

Car Wash - For an easy way to wash your car, simply mix equal parts of warm water (no soap or detergent) and kerosene. No hosing down, before or after, is necessary. After washing, as the kerosene starts to bead, polish with a soft white cloth.

Cards, Stuck Together - If your playing cards are sticky and hard to handle, sprinkle them with talcum powder, then shuffle them a few times.

Carpet, Cleaning - Use very lightly moistened bran. Sift it evenly over the area, then vacuum or sweep in the usual way. Note: Be careful not to moisten the bran too much.

House with a shine sells quicker

If you are like most Americans, your house is your most sentimental investment. You bought it bravely, cared for it lovingly, and forced it to blossom into home sweet home.

Then the time comes to part with your baby, and you find yourself beset by all sorts of separation anxieties, among them: how to make sure that you'll be able to sell your house swiftly and get what you know it's worth.

That's a reasonable concern, and it couldn't be more timely. With interest rates high and the economy showing signs of slowing, selling a house, never a pleasant task, is getting to be a chore in most parts of the country.

About 25 percent fewer houses have been sold each year in the '80s than were sold in the late '70s, and the national Association of Realtors is predicting a further sharp decline next year. So if sell you must, you'll need to summon every advantage.

The first step you take should be away from your house. Walk across the street and look objectively at your property. Consider what you can do, without spending too much, to make the place more appealing from the outside.

Real Estate
By Roger Pyle

Avoid all but the most essential major projects; you may not get back what you spend. But you should make cosmetic improvements, particularly in the front of the house.

Several months before you put your house on the market, hire a lawn service. Plant extra shrubs and flowers. Fix leaking gutters and do some touch-up painting—especially around the front door. Observes Dick Montgomery, a real estate broker in Green Bay, Wisconsin, "Potential buyers are trying to eliminate houses from consideration. You want to make yours the one they can't."

Sprucing up your house's interior also is obligatory. Thin out your possessions with the same ruthless determination you'd bring to weeding your garden. The fewer things you have in a room or closet, the larger it will appear.

Repaint rooms that need it, such as those that your kids have graced with magenta or some other singular color. If the cost is not too great, replace badly worn or garish carpeting.

Once your house looks sharp, call the pros. Particularly in the current tough market, you're probably better off not trying to sell your house yourself.

Real estate agencies have resources that are unavailable to individuals. They can market through a multiple listing service, which alerts nearly every single agent in the area that your house is up for sale.

Agents also can help buyers located the best financing. Since you will pay the commission whether your house is listed by a second-rate agency or the top one in town, go for the best. A good way to locate the leaders is to ask your banker. Then interview agents at two or three top firms to find what sales plan each would offer.

Home health care center

Peoples new Beach facility diverse

VIRGINIA BEACH—With the recent opening of a Peoples Home Health Care Center in the Haygood Shopping Center, Peoples Drug Stores has completed a major expansion of its varied and comprehensive health care services to the people of Virginia Beach and the Tidewater area.

In addition to the new Home Health Care Center, these now include 10 Peoples Drug Stores in Virginia Beach itself, 26 other stores in the Tidewater area, and a free-standing Peoples Optical Center located in Loehmann's Plaza. The Home Health Care Center is at 1075 Independence Boulevard in the Haygood Shopping Center.

Since its opening in mid-September, Peoples Home Health Care Center has generated widespread interest among residents of Virginia Beach and surrounding areas and has made available a broad range of products related to health care for the ill, the handicapped, and people recuperating from illness.

"Our experience thus far with the new center demonstrates that it is filling a real need of people in the Tidewater area," according to Leonard DeMino, Peoples' vice president of Professional Services. "The Home Health Care Center concept, which brings durable health care products and services together under one roof, is successfully meeting today's new challenges to the country's health care delivery system.

DeMino was referring to the increase in outpatient care, the mainstreaming of disabled Americans, a burgeoning aging population, and an increased interest in physical fitness.

The new facility is modeled after Peoples Home Health Care Centers already in operation in Richmond and Northern Virginia. It features products from wheelchairs and whirlpool baths to home oxygen units and exercise bicycles, and includes consultation areas and fitting rooms for orthopaedic garments. There, a professional staff, including trained fitters, discuss patients' needs and satisfy them.

According to Larry Payne, Peoples' district manager, customers are able to order products from the center not only by personal visits but through a catalog service available through all Peoples Drug Stores in the area. Major items can be purchased or rented.

"Our staff at the Home Health Care Center is trained to work with the medical community and to respond promptly to the needs of customers," DeMino pointed out. "We are already well along in building close working relationships with medical professionals and institutions in the Tidewater area. Our goal is to make a significant contribution to the physical well-being of the people of Virginia Beach and its surroundings."

With its new Home Health Care Centers in Virginia Beach and other Virginia communities, Peoples continues to be in the forefront with innovations relating to community health care. Peoples was the first drug chain to establish professionally-staffed dental centers; the first to create a consumer and physician information and education program on generic drugs; and the first to provide a "Patient Guide to Prescription Drugs" at each of the company's pharmacies. Peoples Drug Stores also offer free pamphlets that provide consumers with basic information about a wide range of health topics.

Altogether, Peoples operates 600 drug stores and health-related facilities in 13 states and the District of Columbia.

New facility shines

A wide variety of chairs, canes, patient lifts and other medical equipment from whirlpool baths to home oxygen units are available at the new Peoples Home Health Care Center in Virginia Beach. Professionally trained fitters are also available for consultation using private fitting rooms.

Vote nears for plan

Council of the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce, came out in favor of maintaining the "green line."

Michael Savvides, Council chairman, said, however, that the Council is "troubled by discussions relative to down-zoning and/or moratoria." He said the discussions have led to land speculation and artificially-advanced land values that may create more problems in the north.

He said the Chamber Council is concerned that downzoning may result in the city being involved in costly litigation and potential damages. City Council has been discussing just this in executive sessions. It met in executive sessions both before and after Monday's Council meeting at 8:30 p.m.

Savvides said that a land owner or developer would not pursue development or speculate in marketability where the prospects of adequate road improvement, schools, water and sewerage are not good. He said downzoning may not be necessary to control growth in the southern half of the city if no services are planned. The Council also recommended a reduction in densities in the northern part of the city and that build-out times be extended so that roads, schools and other services could be addressed to match the demand.

Savvides pointed out that the current plan based density on road capacities. Road construction anticipated in 1978 has not been realized, he said.

The All-American rating was given to only the top three percent of all college newspapers in America.

In addition to the rating, the Kernel received marks of distinction in all five categories — coverage and content, writing and editing, opinion content, design, and photography, art and graphics.

According to the ACP judge, "The Kernel is an outstanding student newspaper. Each issue is filled with a wide variety of subject matter which should be very interesting for the campus community. The staff deserves a real pat on the back for a job well done."

The Kernel was judged in the category of monthly junior-college publications. The period of the judging involved all papers published during the first six months of 1984.

John C. Shelhorse of Virginia Beach, was editor for the time span involved.

Tired of bridge, soaps and coffee-clatches? Tired of being alone so much?

Tidewater Chapter, American Red Cross is experiencing an acute shortage of volunteers to help on bloodmobiles, deliver blood to the lab for processing, and to telephone donors.

If you cannot donate blood this is another great way to support the Red Cross blood program so blood will always be available in Tidewater for those who need it.

Red Cross trains you. Drivers must be 21 or over and have no moving violations on their record for the past three years. Red Cross provides the vehicle.

Flexible schedules make volunteering possible for you. Call 446-7731 or 446-7749 for more information. You can help save someone's life by volunteering for Red Cross' blood program.

Bond referendums suggested

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

VIRGINIA BEACH—Bond referendums totaling $226,553,000 are recommended in the $503,429,023 Capital Improvement Budget for 1984-89 proposed by City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck.

Muehlenbeck has asked that referendums totaling $122,820,000 be submitted to the voters during the first quarter of the year. The remaining $103,735,000 for the Lake Gaston pipeline would be placed before the voters later in the five-year period. The first expenditures from this source has been scheduled for the 1986-87 fiscal year.

Of the 1985 bonds, $72,820,000 are for general improvements—schools, highways and public buildings. Another $50,000 in double barrel bonds is for various water and sewer projects throughout the city.

The proposed budget was recently presented to Council. Copies are available to the public in the public libraries and at City Hall.

Muehlenbeck said the staff is preparing information on how the bonds will affect the pocket-books of Virginia Beach citizens. Council has discussed in the past various alternatives for financing the Gaston project, but no decision has been made.

New projects included in the $72,820,000 in general improvement bonds are:

•Schools, $30,320,000—Princess Anne High School modernization, Salem High School, Center for Effective Learning, and various air conditioning projects.

•Highways, $36,500,000—Baxter Road widening, Independence Boulevard Phase III, Princess Anne Road, Kempsville Road intersection, Holland Road Phase IV, General Booth Boulevard Phase II, Shippo Corner Road and Bridge, Northampton Boulevard Phase I, Lynnhaven Parkway Phase V, and Rosemont Road Phase III.

•Correction Center addition, $6 million.

Also included in the budget is a reallocation of $46 million in 1980 water and sewer referendum bonds which the budget notes may require City Council or court proceedings.

The budget is $88,448,361 higher than last year's budget of $414,980,361.

Funds over the five-year period are allocated as follows:

Schools, $76,411,926; engineering and highways, $169,674,801; buildings, $50,573,414; parks and recreation, $13,686,436; water utility, $137,146,654 and sewer utility, $55,935,792.

In addition to the referendum bonds, the projects will be financed by general obligation bonds—borrowing allowed the city without going to referendum, revenue sharing funds, federal contributions, state contributions and private contributions.

College of American Pathologists

VBGH lab accredited

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Laboratory at Virginia Beach General Hospital has been awarded a two-year accreditation by the Commission on Laboratory Accreditation of the College of American Pathologists (CAP), based on results of a recent on-site inspection.

John K. Duckworth, MD, FCAP, chairman of the commission, recently advised R.

laboratory director, of this national recognition and congratulated him and his staff on the "excellence of services you are providing patients and their physicians." The laboratory at Virginia Beach General Hospital is one of 3,000 CAP-accredited laboratories nationwide.

Begun in the early 1960s, the College's program was the first peer-review program for clinical laboratory accreditation. Even before government agencies mandated it, pathologists voluntarily were inspecting and accrediting laboratories to maintain the highest quality laboratory possible.

Today, the CAP Laboratory Accreditation Program is one of the few recognized by the federal government as requiring adherence to standards equal to or more stringent than the government's own. Qualification may require up to a year of advance preparation by the laboratory staff.

The program uses unpaid but well-qualified volunteer pathologists, doctoral scientists, medical technologists, and pathology residents from College-accredited laboratories to inspect and evaluate laboratory services and provide unbiased consulting services to the laboratory.

Virginia Beach General Hospital is the largest hospital in Virginia's largest city. It is the only community, not-for-profit hospital in Virginia Beach, and has been operating for almost two decades.

City adopts sick leave policy

By Lee Cahill

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach City Council recently adopted its first formal sick leave policy for employees.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck advised Council that the sick leave ordinance is a basic policy without benefits found in other sick leave ordinances such as incentives and pay back.

He said that although the city's discretionary policy has been operating without major problems, the legal department has recommended a written, uniformly-administered policy.

The policy was prepared by a Task Force headed by Richard Eason, director of occupational health for the city.

Thomas Abbott, a police officer and member of the executive board of the Virginia Beach Police Benevolent Association, questioned the make-up of the task force, pointing out that no employee was on the board. He also asked whether paternity leave, as well as maternity leave, will come under the same provisions and criticized the requirement that employees out six days or more furnish the city with a doctor's written document supporting the sick claim.

Abbott also said that a police officer does not work in a controlled environment and should be treated differently.

At present a discretionary policy operates in each department.

Employees under the new policy will be credited at the rate of eight hours per month of sick leave, or 12 days a year, and will be allowed to accrue an unlimited number of sick leave hours. Written medical proof of an em-

Virginia Symphony Pops

Holiday concert set for Pavilion

VIRGINIA BEACH—A former music director of the famed Vienna Boys' Choir will bring his special Viennese flair to The Virginia Symphony Pops' holiday concert.

Gerhard Track will conduct The Pops in its annual holiday celebration on Sunday, December 2 at 7:30 p.m. in Virginia Beach's Pavilion. Joining the festivities will be the Virginia Choral Society, Gary Lewis, director.

The program will include medleys of traditional Austrian and American carols. It will open with Track's own "Christmas Fanfare" for brasses and will continue with an overture based on "In dulci jubilo," an arrangement of three Christmas spirituals, Leroy Anderson's "A Christmas Festival," "White Christmas" by Irving Berlin and a special concluding piece from Track's opera The Reindeer's Surprise.

Gerhard Track, a graduate of the Vienna Academy of Music and Performing Arts, is Music Director and Conductor of the Pueblo Symphony Orchestra in Colorado. He also directs the Pueblo Youth Symphony and Pueblo Youth Choral and holds the Thatcher Chair of Music at the University of Southern Colorado.

Track was the youngest director of the Vienna Boys' Choir in the ensemble's history and toured extensively with the group from 1953 to 1958. He continues to be recognized as one of the world's foremost choral conductors.

The concert is sponsored by First American Bank of Virginia. Tickets ($9 to $16) are available at branches of First Virginia Bank of Tidewater and at Pavilion Box Office (428-8000).

Editorials

Changes under the Sun

In an effort to increase local participation in The Virginia Beach Sun we will be making some editorial changes in the content of what was called The Lighter Side page. Long time readers will note the absence of Chuck Faulkner's The Hint Man column, and there will be no crossword puzzle, unless reader response demands its return.

In place of The Lighter Side, the Sun will offer a local cooking column by our own food editor, with recipes from our readers. Starting this week we will also offer a health column, with an eye to area health problems, and written by skilled health professionals. The Sun will also be able to extend coverage of local club meetings etc.

But of course we want to hear from readers as to what they want in The Virginia Beach Sun. Feel free to take pen in hand and drop us a line. —S.M.

Some heart-warming news

Consumers received some good news to take off the pre-winter chill recently when Norway, Britain and OPEC member Nigeria cut the price of their crude oil by as much as $2 a barrel, to $28 a barrel.

Norway started the action because of overproduction and sluggish demand. That forced the cuts by the two larger producers, which also compete for the same market. If Nigeria's fellow oil cartel members can't "defend" their benchmark price of $29 a barrel by agreeing to production cuts at Oct. 29 emergency meeting in Geneva, crude oil prices could soon be down to $25 a barrel or lower.

Such a significant drop in oil prices can only restrain inflation and boost the economy by lowering prices for gasoline, heating oil, airline travel, plastics and all oil-related products.

Lower oil prices do hurt oil-producing countries like Mexico, Venezuela and Nigeria, which have trouble paying back debts to big banks. But overall, an oil glut is helpful to the world economy. In the United States, every $5 per barrel decline results in about a 1 percent increase in the gross national product.

During the last decade, OPEC thought it had the world over a $40 barrel, and price-gouged much of the world into a recession. Now the laws of supply and demand appear to be winning against what was thought to be the most formidable economic cartel.

If OPEC wants to stem the current downward slide in oil prices, it must convince members to abide by production quotas. Historically, that hasn't worked. Someone always cheats by boosting production and secretly selling at a discount.

At this point, it appears that about the only way oil prices will stay up is if the Iran-Iraq war cuts supplies from the Persian Gulf, a brutal winter combined with economic growth spurs unusual demand, or if oil-consuming nations get greedy for new tax revenues.

European nations often raise new revenue by increasing taxes on oil, and the idea has its supporters here in the United States.

Curbing the boom

With words and deeds, Congress has honored the long-standing U.S. commitment to assist international population-control efforts. The 1985 budget resolution includes a $290 million appropriation for world family planning programs. The resolution also makes it clear that international family planning organizations deserve U.S. financial support.

The appropriation, and the message, now go to President Reagan for his signature and his implementation. Although he differed with Congress, the president should perform both duties.

The president sought only $240 million in population-control funding, but the amount was not the key issue. Abortion was. The domestic abortion controversy spread to the world last summer when the Reagan administration announced a change in the 10-year policy that banned the use of U.S. funds for abortions overseas. The change went beyond that ban and threatened to cut off U.S. support for the two major world population-control agencies, the U.N. Fund for Population Activities and the International Planned Parenthood Federation.

Congress commendably chose to stand by the previous policy. Knowing that under that policy none of the $290 million will be used for abortions in other nations, the Reagan administration should - and can in good faith - carry out Congress' will.

The secret of the beach

Since the passing of my father earlier this month the family has, quite naturally enough, been staying close to my mother. That includes daily visits from her granddaughters and great-granddaughters and great-grandsons, grandsons, nieces, nephews and so on. Which means a lot of relatives. Our family, like most, has always gathered for Thanksgiving, and a head count taken the day before the event showed a probable attendance of 14 adults and three children.

Having a fresh turkey brought my nieces over the night before for kitchen prep work. My wife was working the evening shift at the hospital, so I found myself alone in the house with four women whose minds were on nothing but getting that bird ready for the morrow.

Ed's notes

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

It was a cold and blustery night, with a high moon casting intermittent light between the scurrying clouds. I decided to take a walk down to Baylake Beach and visit the Bay.

One of the great secrets of Virginia Beach, indeed of any beach, is that the Bay and the Ocean are just as beautiful during the winter as during the bathing season. In fact, many prefer the solitude of a wintry beach to that of the dense packed sands of summer.

Once or twice as I walked the several blocks to the Bay I thought I must be nuts, choosing to travel straight into the harsh wind, leather jacket zipped to the maximum, wool hat pulled snug, my red nose gleaming like the well-known reindeer.

Numerous cars slowed as they passed me, no doubt assuming only escaped lunatics or hobos would choose to be out in such a cold wind. But I knew the lure of the beach.

I knew the romance of the wind swept sand, dusted with spume from the waves, sporting a thick foam coating as if the water were salivating at the thought of a quick bite of Virginia Beach sand. I knew the steady roar of a winter surf, tossing and churning in its blackness, mystic incarnate, pounding away at the coast with the power of life itself. I knew the peace one could find on an empty beach, a beach forsaken but for birds and driftwood. A beach where a person could think.

When I was younger I used to sneak out during storms, and if I weren't caught I would trot on down to the YMCA Camp and climb the stairway next to the old canteen. There, on the cold concrete steps I would watch the storm batter the beach. Behind me the trees would dance and wave. Ahead, sand blew across my vision like sheets, and the angry grey surf would charge and withdraw like an attacking army. It was hard not to feel insignificant watching a Nor'Easter work the Bay.

But of course I was now older and larger on that night before Thanksgiving. I knew a few more of the answers, and many more of the questions. I knew enough to be happy for the simple pleasure of having a family to gather the next day, to pray and eat together. I knew enough to be thankful for having people who cared about each other. I knew enough to be thankful for life.

Letters To The Editor

More on uranium mining

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

By permitting uranium mining in Virginia we will be setting the stage for a project that will be damaging to ourselves and to our descendants for 100,000 years - damaging beauty-wise, prestige-wise, environment wise, economy-wise, health-wise and peace of mind-wise. All the while this project is damaging us and our descendants throughout the years, and they will have to be spending huge sums of money trying to do the impossible—trying to control the uncontrollable—trying to prevent the devastating leakage of radioactive uranium mill tailings waste into our water, trying to control the continued pollution of our soil and air, and at the same time trying to eke out a living. This situation won't go away! It will stay with us indefinitely.

The sad thing connected with this project is there is no known way of mining uranium safely, no known way of protecting our ground water, our soil and our air, and no known way of hastening the end of the damaging effects in the future. EPA states, "...the radiation hazard from tailings lasts for many hundreds of thousands of years, and some nonradioactive toxic chemicals persist indefinitely." Two of uranium's decay products, radon gas and radium, are of special concern. "The radioactivity and toxic materials in tailings may cause cancer and other diseases, as well as genetic damage and teratogenic effects." (EPA)

An area with polluted radioactive soil, air and water attracts few industries, sells few products, has decreased land values, makes few land sales, offers few jobs, and offers no peace of mind. Present inhabitants have a tendency to move out instead of there being new residents moving in. Are we going to bring this situation upon ourselves here in Virginia? Are we to sacrifice our future for a few extra tax dollars?

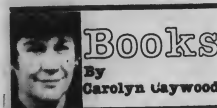

When we compare the bounties that Virginia has today with the degradation that would be left after the uranium companies have mined and gone away, the thoughts of allowing uranium mining to proceed seem ill-advised. Get in touch with your representatives to the General Assembly, and tell them Virginia should not be a "test case" for uranium mining in the water-rich, densely populated, eastern United States. Tell them you don't want to be a guinea pig. Tell them to vote no to uranium mining in Virginia.

Some very ridiculous reading for you

Have you ever wondered whether all those old National Geographic that never get thrown away could weigh enough to sink the United States? Would you like to learn how to build a horsefly-powered aircraft? Are metric clocks the answer to the four-day work week? These and other hilarious ideas have appeared since 1955 in The Journal of Irreproducible Results.

The basis of all scientific research is, of course, that anyone following exactly the same method should get the same result as the scientist who originally performed the experiment. This "reproducibility" is the first requirement for getting published in a respectable scientific journal, winning a Nobel prize, or becoming one of those experts who explain science on talk shows. The Journal of Irreproducible Results has a different requirement. Its editors

Books
By Carolyn Caywood

don't look for theories that are provable, just funny.

They have published articles like "Increasing Abnormality in the Sexual Behaviour Pattern of the Male Black Widow Spider" and "The Inheritance Pattern of Death." Each article runs about two pages and is fully comprehensible to the layperson with an advanced sense of the ridiculous. The spiders, it seems, are considering alternatives to getting eaten by their mates. Readers are warned to choose their parents carefully since there is strong evidence that people who die tend to have parents who also have died.

Articles range from the hard sciences like biology to popular modern disciplines like business administration. Aspiring science students will be particularly interested in the articles on research methods. "The Data Enrichment Method" explains a revolutionary method for getting your inconclusive data to prove something. "A Drastic Cost Saving Approach to Using Your Neighbor's Electron Microscope" demonstrates that no one can recognize the subject of these magnified images anyway. "The Faculty Phrase Finder" provides lists of meaningless jargon guaranteed to win grants and influence university authorities.

All these wonderful ideas, whose time will never come, are now available in The Best of the Journal of Irreproducible Results from Workman Publishing. So if nasal aggression or prenatal psycho-analysis tickle your funny bone, you will find many more "improbable investigations and unfounded findings" in this collection by eminent authorities like I. X. Hume, M.D. and Hedda Hare, Ph.D.—Caywood.

Elsewhere on this page, you'll find what we think and what our columnists and cartoonists think. But what, we ask, do you think?

What do you think about our fair city? Our police department? Our schools? Downtown redevelopment? The city manager? City Council? What about the mayor, the governor, the sheriff, our delegates in the General Assembly, our representatives on Capitol Hill or, for that matter, anything else on your mind?

We want to hear from you and give you the chance to share your opinions with others. Write us a letter and tell us what you think about the world around us or about the newspaper itself.

We don't care what you write about. You're entitled to your opinion, and that's what this page is for—to provide a forum for your expression. Letters are best when brief (500 words or less), and typed, double-spaced. We reserve the right to edit for grammar, spelling, libelous content and, when necessary, brevity. Letters must be signed, and contain address and phone number not for publication.

Shriners receive donation from Oceana employees

By Annette Hall
NAVAL AIR STATION OCEANA, VIRGINIA BEACH—The Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children is $552.35 richer because of the compassion of Robert Temkin, the Naval Aviation Engineering Service Unit (NAESU), and Naval Air Station Oceana employees. A check was presented to Harry Nicholas, Jr., Shrine Oyster Bowl chairman, by Lt. Stephen Rock, NAESU Officer-in-Charge, and Captain L. F. Norton, NAS Oceana commanding officer during a recent ceremony. The money is the remainder of trust funds collected six years ago for Rajesh Durbal.

At the time Rajesh, an infant, needed medical attention to correct a birth defect. Stumps at each ankle were the only indication of feet and Rajesh's right arm was deformed.

The boy's father, an employee at NAS Oceana, approached Shriner Robert Temkin, a NAESU employee on station, for help. Bills were mounting and Rajesh's father did not qualify for assistance, even though his government job was in a low pay grade.

Robert Temkin was sympathetic and helped the family through the Shriners, personal finances, and then through a plea for help from the NAESU command worldwide and NAS Oceana employees.

"The response was gratifying," said Temkin, and a $5,000 trust fund was set up to help defray out-of-state travel costs incurred during Rajesh's rehabilitation over the years.

A job transfer for Rajesh's father has placed the family in New York, where state aid has eased financial burdens. Since the funds are no longer needed to help Rajesh, the board of trustees decided to turn over the remaining money to the Shriners.

With the aid of surgery and prostheses, Rajesh is now an active youngster committed to the game of soccer.

Sharing...and caring

Holiday cheer

Meals with the military

For the sixth consecutive year, the "Holiday Meals With the Military" program will ask the Hampton Roads citizenry to "set another place at the table" for military personnel at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

"It is the public's opportunity to thank the men and women in uniform by simply sharing a holiday meal in their homes," said Richard F. X. O'Connor, committee chairman for the Chamber.

Interested families should simply call 622-2312 and the Norfolk Council of the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce will do the rest. O'Connor recommends that families invite two guests, since the "buddy system" makes everyone feel more at ease.

Over the past years, the program has placed well over 1,200 military personnel in civilian homes during the holiday.

"These people are young and generally have been in the service less than two years, and on holidays they experience the pangs of being far away from home," O'Connor said. "What is it to simply set an extra place at the holiday table for a stranger?" he commented.

ployee's illness is required when an employee is out 48 consecutive hours in any calendar year.

The department head may also at any time require an employee to provide written medical documentation of his illness.

An extended sick leave review board will be established, consisting of five qualified voters, appointed by the city manager for three years each.

Two members will be from management below the department head level and two members from non-management employees, with one additional from the community at large.

Extended sick leave will be granted for a period of time not to exceed 40 consecutive working hours at a time.

Eason pointed out that the Federal Government places maternity leave under sick leave, and that the average maternity leave is a minimum of four weeks, but can extend to eight weeks. "Everybody isn't quite equal," he said.

Dennis Watson, a police officer in a management supervisory position as well as vice president of the Fraternal Order of Police, said the plan has no incentives, and that employees who have never taken any sick leave in 15 or 20 years are treated the same as other employees.

Watson said that employees with seniority should be rewarded with more sick leave.

"We can be fairly optimistic about housing this year, although we would not be surprised to see a drop-off in activity this fall," association president Pete Herder said.

"We are simply delighted," said Mike Hughes, Martin's executive vice president and creative director. "The One Club is an important organization in New York and in the advertising industry. It's nice to have the organization recognize our creative work."

The Martin Agency submitted a broad sampling of creative work for a wide range of clients, and a selection of nine ads appear in a two-page spread in the newsletter.

"We have always maintained that it is possible to do work of top calibre without having a Madison Avenue address," explained David N. Martin, agency chairman, "and having New York agree is particularly gratifying."

The Martin Agency, founded in 1965, is a marketing and communications firm with annual billings in the $45 million range. Headquartered in Richmond, the agency operates offices in Virginia Beach and Jacksonville, Florida.

City receives allocation

A $37,800 allocation in United States Department of Agriculture funds has been received by the City of Chesapeake for the Tidewater Detention Home Secure and Less-Secure facilities.

City Council last week appropriated the money which has to be used for food and food related equipment and supplies.

Debbie Ann Flores Little Miss Phillipines of Tidewater

VIRGINIA BEACH—Debbie Ann Degracia Flores, the daughter of proud parents Gil and Pilar Flores of Virginia Beach, was crowned "Little Miss Phillipines of Tidewater 1984" at the annual pageant sponsored by the Filipino-American Veterans of Tidewater. Nine other contestants, ages seven to ten, competed for the title in talent, physical fitness, poise in gown, and interview at the pageant recently held at the Virginia Beach Pavilion.

Debbie, a ten-year-old fifth grader attending Fairfield Elementary School, thoroughly enjoyed being in the pageant. She displayed her physical fitness in a flattering red bikini. Her talent entry was a modern jazz dance choreographed by Kaye Anderson to Bonni Tyler's "Holding Out For A Hero". Her white gown, designed especially for the pageant by Eugenia Milana was accented with beautiful red roses and silver-trimmed ruffles.

For the first time in the last five years, the selection criteria did not include money generated from the sale of tickets and sponsorship. Jayne Dabu was first runner-up and also received the "Miss Hospitality" title and "Miss Popularity" trophy. Trisha Aquintey was the second runner-up and the recipient of the talent award trophy. Cheryl Diaz was the third runner-up. The other contestants were Grace Alegre, Melanie Bariso, Anne Marie Delostino, who also received the "Miss Congeniality" trophy, Melanie Pedralvez, Cinderella Ramos, and Jessica Reel.

Emceed by the former Miss Maryland, Linda Townsend, and Chip Gallagher, the pageant was an extremely successful and superbly entertaining program presented by the Filipino-American Veterans of Tidewater.
